After Revolt Crushed

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—President Peron announced today the resignation of his navy minister. This came less than 24 hours after Peron told the country he had put down a revolt aimed at the assassination of him and his wife.

Peron's press office said Admiral Enrique B. Garcia had resigned as minister of the navy.

HAPPY BULLETIN

Monarch Continues
To Rally

LONDON (CP)—This morning's medical bulletin on the King said: "King George VI has been gaining strength daily. The period since his operation has been free of complications."

The bulletin was issued as anxiety for the King—who underwent a major lung operation last week—began to give way to a relief that the worst is over.

There was, however, awareness that the 55-year-old monarch is still seriously sick, and there was no indication yet that he had reached the point where all danger of relapse was past.

But the text of the 10th medical bulletin issued since Sunday's operation said:

"Six days have elapsed since the operation on the King. This has been a period free of complications. His Majesty is gaining strength daily."

A crowd of 150 waited in the sunshine outside Buckingham Palace for the notice to be posted on the palace gate.

The British people, seeking information beyond the scanty official bulletins, found plenty of signs of subdued cheerfulness.

GIANTS LEAD
BRAVES, 2-0

BOSTON (AP)—The surging New York Giants, now tied with Brooklyn for first place in the National League, took a 2-0 lead over the Boston Braves this afternoon after six innings.

The Giants tallied their first run in the second when Mays walked, stole second and third, and scored on Mueller's single. In the fifth the Durocher men racked up another when pitcher Sal Maglie singled, went to third on a one-baser by Stanky, and scored on a long fly hit by Dark near the fence in left.

Sportsman And Pioneer
W. N. Lenfesty Dies Here

Another well-known and colorful character has departed from Victoria's depleting pioneer ranks.

He is William N. Lenfesty, known to almost everybody as "Lenny," one of Victoria's early sporting goods store operators, who died at his 126 Douglas Street home in James Bay last night at the age of 79 years. He had been in ill-health for the past year.

In a style typifying that indomitable Lenfesty spirit, Bill a few days before his death con-

Peron appointed navy captain Anibal O. Olivieri as successor to Garcia.

He did not make any elaboration on the change in his cabinet. Last night the Peronista-dominated Congress gave him power to make any changes in the command of the armed forces as a result of yesterday's short-lived revolution.

NAVY ACCUSED

Naval air forces led by Capt. Vicente Baroja, chief of the naval base at Punta Indio, 65 miles south of Buenos Aires, have been accused by the government of joining the uprising. Baroja fled with 35 other officers to exile in Montevideo.

The congressional law also authorized execution of armed forces officers accused by the Peron administration of starting civil war. The country is under a state of siege—a modified form of martial law.

Peron told the country last night he planned rough treatment for "traitors and unworthy military leaders" he accuses of plotting against him and his wife.

Congress has passed a law ordering execution of armed forces officers whom the state radio says started a civil war yesterday. It also approved a law allowing the administration to order changes of any kind for military officers.

Firing Squad
Executes Slayer
Of Baby Sitter

POINT-OF-THE-MOUNTAIN, Utah (AP)—A Utah firing squad executed today a 29-year-old man who raped and killed a teen-age girl who answered his call for a baby sitter.

The marksmen's rifles fired at 6:06 a.m. Ray Dempsey Gardner was declared dead 2½ minutes later.

The Columbus, Ohio, man was condemned for the slaying, more than two years ago, of 17-year-old Shirley Jean Gretzinger of Ogden, Utah.

The five guns of the executioners barked in unison. Wade said examination showed their four bullets—one gun was loaded with a blank cartridge—all plowed into the white target pinned on Gardner's shirt.

Dog Mangles Master

NEW YORK (AP)—An 80-pound American bulldog last night turned on his master, badly mauling his face and body, after one man sought to rescue the animal from stone throwing children. The owner, Rindley Pace, 59, was taken to a hospital in critical condition. His right ear was torn off.

British Plea To U.N.

Car Mangled In Gorge Crash

Car came out second best in pole crash on Gorge Road early today in which three persons were hurt, one seriously. Mrs. Gladys Frew received head and internal injuries as well as fractured leg. Her husband suffered lesser hurts. Driver of car, Sidney Pegg, escaped with minor cuts, bruises. See story page 15. (Times photo.)

Aides Worried At Prospects;
Iran Premier Will Meet Jebb

LONDON (AP)—Iran's prime minister, Mohammed Mossadeh, and Britain's Sir Gladwyn Jebb will meet today for their governments in the boiling oil dispute before the United Nations Security Council next week.

This was disclosed today in London and Tehran. "It will pit a polished British diplomat against a frail, highly-energetic, veteran Iranian politician in a controversy which Britain says endangers world peace. Britain tossed the long and bitter dispute over nationalization of Iran's oil riches to the council yesterday."

Jebb will leave tonight by plane for New York. He will ask the council to call upon the government of Iran not to carry out its eviction notice to 300 technicians at Abadan to get out by next Thursday. Britain has warned "grave consequences" would follow a complete takeover at the Abadan refinery.

Council To Hear Case Monday

(The United Nations Security Council announced today it will convene Monday morning to take up the Anglo-Iranian oil dispute.)

In Tehran, advisers of Mossadeh appeared visibly worried at the latest British move to bring international pressure to delay the order pushing British technicians from Abadan.

The appeal to the U.N. surprised the Iranians. They had half expected Britain to refrain from such a move since the Soviet Union, which has a veto in the council, would side with Iran, in the opinion of Mossadeh's advisers.

Deputy Premier Hossein Fatiemi told newspaper men that "the government does not consider the security council competent to consider the dispute which is purely an internal affair."

That is the line expected to be followed by Iran's premier at the hearings.

Britain will call upon the Iranian government to adhere to the interim recommendation of the international court of justice at the Hague in the dispute.

This recommendation was that neither side in the dispute take irreversible action pending a final decision of the merits of the case.

Iran boycotted the court hearings. It is significant that she will attend the council sessions, although disputing its authority.

Naval Blockade Story Denied

The Foreign Office denied reports published today in British newspapers that Royal Navy ships had started a naval blockade of the Persian gulf to prevent Iran from shipping oil from the Abadan refinery.

Iran recently moved in additional troops to the Abadan area to bolster army and navy units that have been enforcing martial law in effect there since March. A general staff official said fresh troops have been moved into Khuzestan province from neighboring Isfahan and Laristan.

However, he termed ridiculous published reports that Iranian troops were racing toward Abadan from all parts of the country.

Britain is angry at the way her technicians have been inched out of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company's refinery at Abadan. Iran has nationalized the holdings of the British-controlled A.I.O.C.

The country is jittery because of fears that any action to defend her Iranian interests by force might send up in flames the whole middle east.

Prime Minister Attlee's Labor government's approach to the U.N. took the form of a plea to the security council to enforce the July 5 recommendation of the international court of justice at The Hague. This asked Iran to allow the A.I.O.C.'s commercial operations to continue unhindered pending a legal judgment on the oil dispute.

The government complained that Iranian Premier Mohammed Mossadeh's order that all British quit Iran by Oct. 4 breaches that recommendation.

It added that the oil crisis now is a matter likely to endanger the maintenance of international peace and security.

CURBS ARE LIFTED

Canada Now Can Sell
Gold On Free Market

OTTAWA (CP)—Long sought by the gold-mining industry, Canada now has the right to sell gold on the world's free markets but mining men still are not sure how much of a blessing this is going to be.

Full freedom in gold transactions was allowed Canada and 48 other member countries of the International Monetary Fund when the fund yesterday lifted its curbs against selling fabricated gold for industrial purposes—for more than the official rate of $35 (U.S.) an ounce.

South Africa, which hasn't been abiding by the restriction, has sold gold for as high as $51 (U.S.) an ounce on the "premium or industrial" markets.

The extent to which the Federal government will allow Canada's gold industry—with an annual production worth $140,000,000 to reach this free market is expected to be decided at a cabinet meeting early next week.

The cabinet may also decide what is to be done about subsidies which it has been paying out to keep marginal mines from folding. Started in 1948, the subsidies have cost the government about $10,000,000 a year.

In Toronto, financial circles greeted the fund's curb-lifting with a mixture of cheer and caution. Generally the opinion was that it all depended on the degree of free-trading permitted and whether subsidies were to be continued.

The next move was up to the Federal government.

Premier Frost of Ontario said the change wouldn't cure the problems of the industry but it represented a more realistic approach.

FORESTS OPEN
SUNDAY NIGHT

The forest closure in the Vancouver forest district will be lifted at midnight Sunday.

The announcement was made today by Lands and Forests Minister E. T. Kennedy.

The closure had been in effect most of the summer. The lifting is the go-ahead signal for thousands of loggers, hunters and fishermen.

Truman Seaway Support
Draws Mixed Reaction

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Truman's willingness to support Canada's proposal to build the St. Lawrence Seaway—if it cannot be constructed as a joint United States-Canadian project—drew mixed Congressional reaction today.

Senator George Aiken (Rep.-Vt.), an ardent seaway supporter during the many years it has been before Congress, said tersely:

"It's a disgrace for the United States to force Canada to do this for her own protection. We ought to be ashamed of ourselves."

Truman's position was disclosed yesterday in a joint statement after a conference in which Prime Minister St. Laurent outlined Canada's plan to proceed along with the estimated $700,000,000 development.

The White House announcement, however, emphasized that Truman preferred joint construction as provided for in a 1941 agreement.

"But," the joint statement said, "the President stated he would support the Canadian action as second best if an early commencement on the joint development does not prove possible."

The dual undertaking has already been rejected during this Congress by the House of Representatives public works committee. The Senate foreign relations committee has yet to take any action on similar legislation introduced months ago.

Representative Tom Pickett (Dem.-Tex.), an opponent of the project, said of Truman's acceptance:

"He's finally showing a little judgment."

He suggested that Canada give the President "a little more time to see if he can't get Congress to act favorably." He said he thought the chances of Congressional approval now are "excellent."

(In Quebec, where he flew from the Washington conference to confer with Premier Maurice Duplessis, St. Laurent said the seaway project will be carried out, but he said the manner of procedure remains to be settled.)

(He told reporters on arrival: "We are going to have it.")

(And in Owen Sound, Ont., the chairman of Ontario Hydro, Robert Saunders, said the Hydro Commission hopes to start development of the power phase within a few months.)

Reds Claim Allies
Plan China BombingPeiping Broadcast Declares U.S. Also Prepares New North Korea Landings

TOKYO (AP)—Communist China said tonight the United States has wrecked the Kaesong truce talks and is preparing amphibious landings on both coasts of North Korea.

A Peiping broadcast monitored here said the Americans plan to drive Red forces to the Yalu River boundary between North Korea and Manchuria, and to bomb Communist bases in northeast China.

The propaganda blast came just 24 hours after Gen. Omar N. Bradley arrived to confer with the United Nations' commander, Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway. Bradley is chairman of the U.S. joint chiefs of staff. Headquarters statement said he and Ridgway discussed "military matters of mutual interest."

Presumably their talks covered the course of action to be taken by U.N. forces if the stalled truce talks break down altogether.

Peiping did not mention Ridgway's proposal, made Thursday, that talks be shifted from Kaesong to the vicinity of the no-man's-land village of Songhyon, six miles southeast of there.

The broadcast said "in order to conquer the whole of North Korea, the Americans have decided to train five more divisions, drive the (North) Korean and Chinese forces to the Yalu River, and bomb Communist bases in northeast China."

Peiping said the commanders of two National Guard divisions now training in Japan recently visited Korea "for a first-hand survey."

The broadcast said the divisions were being groomed for the adventurous landing.

Peiping spoke of "two new U.S. fighter and bomber wings" which it said had been recently transferred to Japan from U.S. bases, and new additions to the U.N. naval forces in Korean waters.

ONE WOMAN'S DAY

By NANCY HODGES

HAIR-DO'S AND HOW-DO'S

AS A FIRM believer in adult education, because I feel I am never too old to learn, I go around picking up trifles and tidbits of information to add to my store of knowledge with much the same eagerness—and irresponsibility—that a chicken scratches all over the place in search of tidbits for its "more material crop."

One of the tidbits I recently garnered had to do with hair-dressers. It seems I have been laboring under a terrible mistake all these years. I had been under the delusion that hair-dressers were invented for the sole purpose of giving their customers hair-do's and scalp treatments.

SADLY MISTAKEN

BUT NOT A BIT OF IT! No less an expert than the head of a New York Studio of Hair Designs—not just an ordinary hairdresser or barber, mark you!—has convinced me that I have been wronging the profession over the years and shown me how wrong my approach to their shrine has been.

According to her evaluation, the hairdresser must be a combination of father-confessor, morale-booster, creative artist, teacher and psychiatrist. Furthermore, she added, the customer expects a period of relaxation, a little applied psychology and some practical philosophy, as well as hair-styling, when she visits a beauty salon.

BEAUTY BOOTH BEHAVIOUR

SO YOU CAN SEE why I have been so remiss in my attitude towards the particular establishment where I go to get my greying locks attended to. Instead of entering it with the awesome feeling with which one should enter a combination of confessional and clinic, I blandly approach it in the shampoo-and-set mood.

Yet, in reviewing my past mistakes in behaviourism in beauty booths, I can see that this father-confessor, morale-booster, psychologist-psychiatrist stuff may have been going on right under my very nose only I didn't recognize it.

FATHER-CONFESSOR

NOW, I DON'T MIND admitting that I am not at all averse to relaxing when in the operating chair—of a hairdressing establishment, that is. And I do not mind the hairdresser being a creative artist, as long as he doesn't try any creative, modernistic stuff on my defenceless head. As to his being a morale-booster, any woman who has just had a decent hair-do knows what it can do to her morale—or pride, whichever you like to call it.

But it was the bit about hairdressers being expected to be father-confessors that intrigued me. Looking back over my own experiences in these salons, I now realize that many of my fellow-clients have long accepted that facet of operative requirements.

DRIERS AND DRIPS

IT EXPLAINS WHY so many women open up and unburden their souls under the magnetic influence of the drier—or is it under the magnetic influence of the tonorial touch? It is amazing what the customer will reveal at such times, and because she has to talk loudly to drown the hum of the drier, her confession has all the earmarks of being shouted from the rooftops.

I have heard enough domestic details of "what I said to him" and "what he did to me" from the depths of driers to qualify any hairdresser—or even me—for the role of father-confessor.

PSYCHOLOGY, TOO?

AS TO THE psychology-psychiatry phase of the calling, as considered essential by the New York Studio of Hair Design, no doubt my hairdresser is fully qualified, too. She—and he—couldn't stand the constant nattering that goes on under driers if they hadn't the soothing, understanding and analytical faculty alluded to.

But I notice that it works in reverse, as well. Otherwise how would male customers of barbers and hairdressers be able to stand the constant nattering that some barbers inflict on them? And they haven't even the protective drone of the driers to drown it out, either.

Library Offers Closure Bonus

Extra books may be borrowed from the Public Library before its two-week closure. It was announced today by Miss Margaret Clay, city librarian.

For the convenience of library patrons any reasonable number of extra books may be borrowed before the library closes Oct. 2 at 9 in the evening.

The public is requested not to return such extra books until Oct. 18, the day after the formal opening of the new addition and

Esquimalt Teams Strong This Year

Esquimalt High School has a shortage of senior rugby players but to make up for it they will file strong bantam and junior teams in both inter-high leagues.

Both teams will have several of last year's performers back, and will be both coached by Roy Temple.

Inter-house games will commence next week and will be played when league games are not scheduled.

Practises will be held soon for the inter-high swimming gala which is to be held at the Crystal Garden sometime in October.

Coach Bill Reid reports that Esquimalt High will have an exceptionally tall basketball team this year. It will be composed of such sky-crappers as Bill Dobie, Ralph Bennett, Gordy Jones, Ron Hunter, Mark Cunningham, Jerry Harris and Jerry Carter.

B.C. Power Misused—Bennett

British Columbia's Coalition Government had created a commission to bring power to the people, but that power had been misused.

This was the charge levelled by W. A. C. Bennett, South Okanagan M.L.A., speaking in the wind-up meeting at Luxton on behalf of Cmdr. A. C. Wurtele, independent candidate in the Esquimalt by-election Friday night.

"Why have they permitted 65 per cent of the power generated to be sold to a little group which only pays 11 per cent of the total cost?" Bennett asked.

This was an example of the dangers of monopoly of right or left, or the monopoly of the state, which was the most dangerous of all, he said.

Rates to the industrialist were low, said Bennett, but rates to the ordinary individual user of power were relatively high.

"You have an opportunity which every constituency in the province envies to express your protest against this Government. You're not going to be taken in by any city slicker," he added.

ROAD PROMISE BROKEN

A definite promise had been given by the Government to build the Sooke-Jordan River Road, said Christian Helgeson.

Speaking as a life-long Liberal, he said work on this section had been halted with eight miles to go, and in a condition "to shake the teeth out of a saw."

He urged the completion of the Jordan River-Port Alberni link, which would give a continuous Island Highway.

Mrs. T. J. Rolston, Vancouver-Point Grey M.L.A., agreed with Helgeson that the beauty and development potentialities of the country made a West Coast road desirable. "And I'll support it in the House," she promised.

COUNTRY EXPLOITED

The country was being exploited, Mrs. Rolston declared. She referred to the $13,000,000 net profit reported for nine months of the year by H. R. MacMillan (Export) Ltd. The government's revenue for a full year from all its forests was only $5,000,000.

"A move to adjust timber fees and power costs for industry would not conflict with any free enterprise," she said.

Garsten Weston, noted author, who was chairman, warmly supported Cmdr. Wurtele, who himself spoke briefly outlining his aims.

Revision of the hospital insurance act and of the liquor laws, democratic government and an end of arbitrary cabinet control were his chief points of reform.

Anscomb Roars Hecklers Down

Joins Premier In Final Rally To Win Esquimalt For Coalition

Boos from some parts of his audience failed to slow down Finance Minister Herbert Anscomb at a final Coalition rally at Esquimalt Friday night.

In characteristic fashion, the booming minister traded verbal punches with hecklers and carried on to defend the policies of the government.

After Mayor Percy E. George's address, Carew Martin, K.C., rose to suggest a question period immediately. Chairman Richard Reeve said the question period would be held when all speeches were finished.

"Well, I hope the rest of the speeches won't be as long as Mayor George's," replied Martin.

A member of the audience then tried to ask questions but the chairman ruled him out of order. The questioner persisted.

"I didn't hear what you muttered, but keep right on muttering," the minister told the man. "I've only been beaten down once in my life and that was at a dog show at the Crystal Garden. The dogs barked me down."

NO ONE LISTS

"Nobody takes any notice of an Independent—I know, I was one once myself. The same applies if a socialist is elected," said Anscomb.

Referring to the statement that $26,300,000 of the $35,000,000 the government borrowed from New York was to pay a bank overdraft, the speaker said "that person" knew it wasn't, but was trying to deceive the people. He then went on to tell how the money was used.

Premier Johnson, in reviewing the government's manifesto, said since 1949 nearly every point in it had been carried out or is in progress.

$40,000,000 PAID

Speaking on the anniversary of his serious accident last year in Quebec, the premier defended hospital insurance and died cases where persons have benefited greatly. Total of $75,000,000 in hospital bills, have been paid, he stated.

COALITION DIVORCE NEAR

Harmony Lacking, Winch Declares

The C.C.F. does not think too highly of the Coalition government.

"It is on the verge of divorce, yet is telling the people it is the best government ever. That is complete political dishonesty," said Opposition leader Harold Winch last night at the Esquimalt Boilermakers' Hall.

"A final piece of insanity in the forest situation was allowing hunters into the woods when even the logging camps were closed," said party veteran Colin Cameron.

"To me it's the 'cold-ill-itchin' party," said Frank Mitchell, C.C.F. candidate in the Oct. 1 Esquimalt by-election, for whom the others spoke. "Cold to everyone, ill politically, and 'itchin' to break up."

IMPOSSIBLE SITUATION

Winch was the most vigorous speaker against the government. Referring to recent rattles in the Coalition machine, he said good government was impossible without cabinet harmony.

"If the premier had any sense of responsibility he would demand the immediate resignation of Anscomb and MacDonald. But no..."

He also said he had been trying for two days to see the premier and demand that the special session of the Legislature in October to consider old age pensions also discuss the Buttle Lake issue, milk, and hospital insurance.

PEOPLE'S WISH

"The members will be there, and the people want these points discussed," Winch said.

He also blasted the hospital insurance plan and mentioned, among other points, that administration costs here are 8.1 per cent, and 4.3 per cent in Saskatchewan.

"That is why the representatives of the 'business' government are leaving for Regina Saturday night—to see how they do it."

WHAT'S YOUR OPINION?

By DAVE STOCK and IRVING STRICKLAND

Do you think Victoria's one-night drive is the best method of raising funds for the Community Chest?

Terry Walls, TP Hobby Shop, 227 Robertson Street.—"It's a good idea to get it over with in one night. It saves a lot of bother. The people who don't want to give won't give anyway no matter how long the campaign goes on. Most people, though, don't mind giving. They give the campaign so much publicity that everybody gets to feel they've got to give anyway."

Mrs. Myrtle Drysdale, clerk at Walter Walker fuel office, 2573 Florence Street.

"I think it's a good idea. It seems to me it worked out very well last year. Everybody seemed to stay home and put on their porch light. I think most people are glad to give to the Chest because they are all worthwhile causes. There are always some who complain. I hope Victoria beats New Westminster in this year's drive. I sure would like to see that New Westminster mayor sweep off our ice rink."

John Bortnak, able seaman R.C.N., 1261 Johnson Street.—

"As long as everybody stays home it's all right. But there are a lot of fellows who are pretty cheap. They'll just skip out for the night and then the campaign won't reach its objective. It would be all right if everybody co-operated."

Mrs. W. F. Hamilton, clerk at Surplus Centre, 120 1/2 Dallas Road.—"I think it's a very good idea. Most people will stay at home and keep their porch light burning. It's certainly a lot easier on the collectors this way. They don't have to keep going out every day until they're all tired out."

John Syme, purchasing agent for Royal Jubilee Hospital, 3860 Synod Road.—"Yes, I think it's a very good idea. It has my whole-hearted support. It saves everybody's time and effort. I think the canvassers are the ones who benefit most. It saves them from making so many calls and from having to go back time and time again to people who are not in. Last year's one-night campaign proved its value. They didn't quite reach the objective but they got as much as they would have if they'd struggled along for three weeks."

Near-Miss For Attlee

SLAITHEWAITE, Yorkshire (Reuters)—The metal and glass cover of an arc lamp crashed from the roof of a marquee here today, just missing Prime Minister Attlee.

It fell three feet in front of the platform from which Attlee was making an election speech. Mrs. Attlee was sitting beside her husband. No one was hurt. Neither Attlee nor his wife moved.

Dr. F. T. Fairley and prize pupil.

Scholarships Assure Prize Pupil's Future

Presentations came thick and fast for 18-year-old Lyle Robertson at the annual prize-giving at Victoria High school Friday.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Robertson, 1308 Carnes, who came second in the province in junior matriculation examinations last June, received four awards, which will ensure his university education. His average was 96.3 compared to first place winner who had 96.9.

Dr. F. T. Fairley, deputy minister of education, presented the Royal Institute prize of $175 and Miss J. Gower the Provincial Government Employees' Association award of tuition for first year college.

The Vancouver Sun award will provide $400 a year for five years; the Chis Spencer award, $225 for first year.

"I did not expect all this," grinned the tall youth who is in his first year at Victoria College. He plans to go into research either in physics or chemistry.

28 Students Get Honors At St. Ann's

Wearing the traditional white cap and gown, 25 students received diplomas and special honors at the Commencement Exercises of St. Ann's Academy Friday night.

Six had completed senior matriculation and first year arts requirements of U.B.C., while 19 gained university entrance.

More than 300 parents and friends filled the auditorium for the ceremony. The school choir in their navy blue tunics and white blouses formed the background for the graduates, who sat on a flower-decked stage.

Bishop James M. Hill told the girls the education they received had a two-fold purpose, spiritual as well as material.

PREPARE FOR DESTINY

It was, he said, to prepare them to take their places in society as worthy Canadians and to help them fulfill their "eternal destiny."

Senior matriculation graduates were: Shirley Ash, Lois Davis, Elizabeth Harrison, Alice Martin, Barbara Patterson and Dawn Trainor. Junior matriculation graduates were: June Bayly, Janet Beschesne, June Caddick, Dorothy Conery, Kathleen Deas, Judith de Blois, Josephine Caspari, Claire Guillemard, Mary Hanley, Alice Isherwood, Wilma Johnson, Jacqueline Jorje de St. Jorre, Kathleen McDonald, Maude O'Sullivan, (honor standing); Margaret Pearce, Regina Petzinger, (honor standing); Frieda Raab, (honor standing); Vivienne Skinner and Joan Taylor.

Dr. E. J. W. Nash conferred diplomas.

There's not a movie actress can come near her in glamour—not 40 miles to Christmas," said Mrs. Hodges.

"We should be more conscious of our British heritage," she said. "I hope this Royal visit will remind you what these young people symbolize."

H. L. Smith, principal, was chairman.

YANKS NEUTRAL—OR ARE THEY?

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Like the native of the Old Sod who tried to explain Ireland's position in the Second World War, the Yankees are neutral in the National League race, but can't decide who they're neutral against. ... The players' votes generally go with their pocket-books. ... Ebbets Field can seat only about 33,000 customers for a world series game, while the Polo Grounds holds 50,000. ... On the other hand, they figure there's a better chance to win from the staggering Dodgers than the red-hot Giants.

Choices In Esquimalt

IN THE REMAINING HOURS BEFORE they go to the polls, electors of Esquimalt will have the opportunity to weigh quietly for themselves the issues which have been presented to them in the by-election campaign now completed. They may note in passing that the Coalition spokesmen and candidate have thrown no mud. Speakers on that platform have followed a clean, factual line, free from personalities.

Voters will understand, too, that while the election of the Coalition candidate will give them representation on the government side, any other result will in no way influence the strength of the administration, whose majority is not in jeopardy.

Stripped of all trimmings, the electors will be confronted with three main choices.

In Mayor Percy George the government presents a man of wide municipal experience whose distinction has been proved by such honors as the presidency of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities. He stands squarely for the government policy which has been amply disclosed in its record of achievement. That record is significant for its success in attracting to the province the capital which has made possible the greatest era of expansion and development in British Columbia's history. It is one, moreover, which has shown excellent progress in public works and in the field of social services. Neither the government nor its supporters claim perfection during the years it has been in office. They can, however, state honestly what has been done to stimulate growth and increase prosperity. The C.C.F. presents Frank Mitchell, an untired young man who is committed to the socialist policies of his party. Those are frankly admitted by party stalwarts as the eradication of capitalism—the private enterprise which has brought this province to its present peak of importance in the productive field. He stands, too, for the oft-repeated foreign policy of the C.C.F. which—though not properly an issue in the domestic field of Esquimalt's by-election—is still so at variance and in such contradiction to the principles espoused by Canada and its North Atlantic Treaty allies as to be an impediment to national unity.

Thirdly, the riding has been invited to support Cmdr. Alfred Wurtele, the Esquimalt councillor, who has been placed in the unfortunate position of front man for the Bennett splinter movement. Cmdr. Wurtele has pledged himself to a number of generalities. His affiliations in the by-election, however, force him into a peculiar role. He is, in effect, inviting the electors of Esquimalt to quaff the unlabelled political brew being concocted in the basement of W. A. C. Bennett. What that brew may be, Mr. Bennett does not disclose, though his disappointment over defeat when he sought the Progressive Conservative leadership might lend it a bitter flavor. Cmdr. Wurtele has been joined by other Progressive Conservatives not conspicuously successful in their appeal to the public for legislative or parliamentary office. Their support, of course, merely underscores the rebellion within their own party and will not influence others loyal to the Coalition pledge.

Uprising In Argentina

IT WAS HIGHLY INDICATIVE OF the "esteem" in which President Juan D. Peron of Argentina is held in the free world that the first reaction to news that he had a revolt on his hands was pleasure, followed by a suspicion that he may have staged the whole thing for his own benefit.

Although all news reports emanating from the dictator's country were quickly halted and the sole source of information became the announcements on the government-controlled radio, it appears that the rebellion was short-lived. The two generals who reportedly organized it did not command a sufficiently large following and their forces were soon dispersed. It is well known, however, that military heads have long resented the ambitions of Eva Peron, the President's wife, in the political field. The revolt, if authentic, could well be ascribed to this cause.

The apparently isolated effort, however (we have only government reports by which to judge it), raised the suggestion that the incident could have been manufactured by Peron himself in an effort to smoke out dissidents and rally the general public to his support. Such spurious dangers have been the stock in trade of dictators, and frequently used as the basis for the imposition of further dictatorial power. Adolf Hitler's Reichstag fire was a classic example. It cannot be forgotten that general elections will take place in Argentina next November 11 and that rising costs and shortages have caused some grumbling among the workers on whom Peron bases his main political strength.

It would seem, on the whole, that the time is not yet ripe in Argentina. The Perons' great display of affection for the working man has not yet lost its lustre, the government's domination of the press and control of the radio gives it a firm grasp on public opinion. But yesterday's incident could well be a sign of things to come, and a warning to the man who himself won power in Argentina by just such a revolt.

'One-Third More'

THE PORCH LIGHTS WILL SHINE again on Monday night and a generous population will make its gifts to assist those who need help.

This will be the second occasion on which Victoria has undertaken the task of meeting its Community Chest objective in a single evening's canvass. Last year the eyes of the nation turned to us to see if such an ambitious effort could meet success. Our achievement proved the merit of the campaign. It is being copied elsewhere this year. But the eyes of other centres will still be focused on Victoria to learn that the 1950 experiment was no matter of luck. On Monday evening the important words in the campaign slogan will be "one-third more." The carefully audited estimates of different agencies call for that increase. It is needed to meet the obligations they have assumed.

The story of the Community Chest is too well known to need recapitulation here. It is an appeal to the heart on behalf of those who are unfortunate, and a request to the population to help keep healthy those who are well.

Before meeting the canvasser on Monday evening, every householder must consult his or her conscience to determine how large the contribution will be. There is no question of the need for more funds. Victorians can meet that need.

Chips Off The Old Brock

By DAVID BROCK

BY THIS time in September, most parents have got quite used to their children going to school again and have stopped regarding this fact as a sentimental miracle. But I have a friend who manages to stay sentimental about it for whole weeks and months every autumn, with occasional debauches of softness throughout the winter and spring. He even gets sentimental to think about his own parents' feelings on seeing him march off to school long ago.

Though he tells me they didn't seem so sad as he feels now, I have explained to him that this was because they were glad to get rid of anyone as sentimental as himself, but he doesn't believe me. He thinks they were crazy enough to forgive him for being himself.

OF COURSE, another reason his parents weren't so broken up was that they paid far less for a "free" education than he is paying. The sum tied up in buildings (past, present, and future) was tiny in those days. And the individual pupil was expected to furnish hardly any of his school needs. When I sent my own four Brocklings off to school after Labor Day, they carried a private investment of many, many dollars tied up in scribbles, pencils, and all that. The twins in Grade 3 had 22 scribbles between them, plus an amount of other purchases, plus sums in cash to buy things called Work Books.

I SUSPECT my friend of being sad for still another reason. He lives in a municipality which owns its own bus system, including the school buses. Last year the children traveled for 4 cents a day, but this year it costs them 8 cents, and since he has a good supply of children he is taxed accordingly, as a traitor to the district. Children are subject to all sorts of luxury taxes, like those other evils, drink and tobacco. My friend has calculated that a year's fares on the school buses now represent the interest on about $1,900 worth of Dominion bonds. Add that to the school's cut on his property tax, plus the cost of buying little school extras, and it's no wonder he gets all soft and weepy when he thinks about education. I'm almost crying myself.

CAN IT be managed in most households, but in mine the horrible canning season seems to stretch from July to October, blast it. Evenings are filled with the hiss of pressure cookers, and the clunk of tins cooling in the sink. Afternoons are ruined by the disgusting task of re-flanging used tins. Every time you make a plan, it is put off because the next box of peas will rot if you don't can the silly stuff. For almost four months I seem to be toiling over a hot tin . . . the way so many cooks do all the year round.

BUT IN MY deepest depression, I console myself with the thought that at least we call these beastly cylinders tin cans, whereas the French are forced to refer to them as boites de fer blanc, which means boxes of white iron, and sounds even worse.

Which reminds me, for no particular reason, of another French peculiarity. When we go to a doctor we are asked to say "99," but a French doctor will ask you for less than half of that. He asks you to say "42," which is "quarante deux." The French are thrifty, of course. But is their thriftness when your health is at stake?

LEGAL POINT THE POLICE say that if you do not carry your driver's license on your person, this proves you are not a licensed driver. That is to say, you are not entitled to use the roads unless fully documented at all times by documents carried on the person. If I were still a lawyer, as I once was, I'd enjoy contesting this. I'd begin by asking to see a fully documented cop.

just after the end of the war. It was a very tricky operation even then; without the war outlook it would be more burdensome than most of us would bear. I know I'm influenced in my judgment by the fact that I was in Britain and Europe this summer. I think you do feel differently about inflation and high prices once you fully realize that it's one of the big problems of all the countries in the North Atlantic alliance. It comes from the fact that all of us, with the United States way out in front, have been rushing into a defense program and at the same bidding up prices for nearly everything.

The tide of inflation doesn't start in Canada and it's much bigger than anything Canada can do about it. It's caused internationally and it can only be fundamentally cured internationally. Canada is joining in various international steps, notably the International Materials Conference in Washington, to try to provide international answers. If Canadians realized more fully how much we are implicated in all these international problems, even at the level of our grocery bills, there would certainly be less indifference to the part we have to play in the Western World.

MUCH IMPORTED None of the economists I've talked to have ever been able to guess how much of our inflation was imported and how much we generate ourselves. The greater part is probably imported. There is certainly a growing conviction amongst the government economists that the orthodox fiscal measures—high taxes and credit controls—which Mr. Abbott imposed last spring, have taken most of the pressure out of domestic inflation. They are certainly on the right lines; and if the government's publicity experts can put across next month's new bond issue and persuade us to save more we shall be another step along the road.

The question whether the present smoke control law shall be changed is controversial, but there seems fairly general agreement on one point. That is that the Smoke Control Bureau should be set up as an independent city agency, free of the control of any larger departments and reporting only to the mayor. It should have qualified engineers at the top. We should like to see the law changed to that extent.

Take The Lead With A Leader

Mr Preps' Diary Being A Chronicle Of Our Times

MONDAY, 24th—This day dawned bitter chill, and threatened rain, so I looked in my carriage for my Burberry, but found my wife had removed it to its proper place, which is always exasperating. At my place of business, my breath was white on the air, and I could not make the pipes to go, so I chafed people around desks to get warm, and simulated a great fury, which fooled no one. Anon comes calling Master Rebel Mowat, a very inventive rogue, and he told me a tale he'd related to some visiting Britons: that we caught cougars in this country by luring them onto frozen lakes, where they ate deer's carcasses until their tails froze, whereupon we beat them with clubs. And these simple strangers believed him, exclaiming: "Good show!" At my club, many gentlemen were deploring the increase of their weights, which went like this: Master Justin Harbord, 210 pounds; Master Harold Husband, 215 pounds; Master Ralph Davis, 225 pounds; and Master A. H. Fitzgerald, 230 pounds. Which made me seem so frail I resolved thenceforth to take a tonique. By and by I called on the Premier and found him in good spirits, and about to set forth on a speeder which would take him into the forests at Port Renfrew, to make a political speech; a brave undertaking for a convalescent, and I pray he is not essaying too much. For supper, I sat me down with Dr. and Mistress John Ewing and members of the Laurier Club, and we listened to a rare excellent witty discourse by Madame Speaker on her tour abroad; and I was saddened at the news that Mr. Churchill loses favor in the Island which he hath led out of darkness. Thence home, where I listened to an address by the Hon. Ernest Carroon, in which he told of public works in this province. A most sensible discourse, quietly given, which is the mark of this splendid fellow.

Give the tunique off your back for ye Community Chest.

TUESDAY, 25th—Up betimes and put on my grey chalk-striped suitings, which I do not like, as it fits me ill since the reduction of my embonpoint, and is like unto the garb of a clown. After my lunch I took me to the Customs House, to pick up a box of Havana cheroots which my brother hath dispatched from afar, worth $6; but after I'd paid duty, and excise tax, and sales tax, this present cost me $5.37, and a sinister bar to friendship this be. Strolling through the streets, I encountered a noble Scot from across the water, by name George Donaldson, and he quipped, his eye agleam: "Vancouver is like smoky, industrial Glasgow, but Victoria—Ah! Here is the noble, aristocratic air of Edinburgh." I visited my counting-house, and several shops, purchasing from Mistress Gwen Scott a new book, "The Sea Around Us," highly recommended, and well nigh unobtainable in this city. At my office comes calling Sir W. H. Wightman, a courtly gentleman of 80, who twitted me for my reading habits; Master George Masters, and several others. Thus home for a ragout, very tasty with a sprig of bay leaf. Anon I ran my dog, and stroked his back with a stiff brush, which pleased him mightily. Then to my den, where I read until my eyes ached on the history of the Tatars; a bad lot.

Give to ye Community Chest.

WEDNESDAY, 26th—This day I donned rough clothes, and heavy woollens and repaired to the woods with Master Ernest Arnott and 20 good gentlemen of the chamber of commerce. After a drive of 90 minutes we paused by a small lake to greet Master Jack Elliott, who introduced us to a groaning table of chickens, and hams, and the most exquisite raspberry pastys, prepared by a cook named Cook. And this talented fellow greeted most cheerily Master Fred Hawes, whom he hath known some quarter-century before, but hath not seen since. In this party was His Worship Mayor Percy George, a most amiable fellow, who greeted many laborers in the hills, and shook their hands, and blushed to the pores when accused of politicking. Thus by flume railway to a diversion dam, where Master Len Hobbs espied a large hornets' nest, and assaulted it with stones, and then ran, with the party waging 11 to 5 on the hornets. But he escaped. Thus lately home where my wife, poor wretch, was greatly starved. So I took her to Ming's Kitchen and filled her up on fried rice and shrimps poe yung, a most splendid dish. Thence she to a movie, "David and Bathsheba," and I to a meeting of musique, where Master Hans Gruber was set upon for the layings-out of money for artists; but so persuasive and sophisticated was he in debate that economists present threw up their hands, and subsided with hollow groans. Thus by carriage to retrieve my wife who, much impressed by her play, felt to reading the Bible story in bed; which demonstrates that the cinema can encourage the reading of this noble book.

Monday text: "Let your light so shine forth."

THURSDAY, 27th—This morning there were fearsome raynes, for which I thank God! At lunch, I delivered Mistress Inez McLeod to my club, and she spoke most winsomely of the Community Chest; and after pinning a large red feather in the jabot of Master George Warren, kissed his brow, which much jumbled this jovial fellow. By carriage with Master John Payne and Master Morley Collins to the home of Capt. Bud Attwood, new chief of staff of His Majesty's fleet, to discourse of Royal Tour plans, which go with efficiency. My supper was a roast of chicken and an apple pye, nicely turned. With Master Payne, up and away by carriage to the airport, he having checked his time of departure; but when we arrived over brutal highways, were advised this plane could not fly, the clouds being low, and we were sore vexed that the city office knows not what Patricia Bay ordains. Thus in ill temper to the docks, where Master Payne boarded a ship for his journey across the water.

Give—for the sick, the halt, the lame, the blind.

FRIDAY, 28th—Comes to me this fine day Master Arthur Cox, and I told him that Master Bennett would wager £300 on the outcome of Monday's election; whereupon Master Cox said he would grasp it, being confident of the outcome. And I do believe that the simple question, amid all the tinsammy and bustle, is this: how goes the country's business? Is there work, and do the people profit by it? Finding it to be so, I support the government. Thus to my letters, and much other sundry business. In the evening, my wife and I to the home of Master Logan Mayhem, dem'd handsome, to witness the art and sculpture of Jan Zach, very much at home in these progressive surroundings.

P.S. I put aside some monies, and checked my lanterns, thus to greet my Community Chest at 7 o'clock Monday evening.

Canada Has The Right Attack On Inflation But The Economic Problem Is World-Wide

By MICHAEL BARKWAY, Correspondent of Saturday Night and Victoria Daily Times, from Ottawa

THE two-fold declaration about economic controls which Mr. Abbott made in his broadcast this week left no doubt about where the government stands. It means that when the members of Parliament come back to Ottawa on Oct. 9, they may talk about high prices as much as they think their voters will like; but they can't really expect that they will make much impression on the government.

Essentially Mr. Abbott and his advisers are opposed to a price control program of the general kind which the C.C.F. want, because they don't think it would work. Prices could be controlled. Nobody denies that. But only by putting the Canadian economy into a strait-jacket which Canadian people wouldn't tolerate for very long. The strait-jacket would involve not only all the fiddling regulations—permits for this and licenses for that—and all the army of bureaucrats that Mr. Abbott talked about. It would also mean something that might be more serious. It would involve cutting Canada off from the export and import markets on which we depend as much as any country in the world.

Think of all the things our industries have to import from the United States, starting with steel, the most basic of all. If we are to buy any steel at all we can only buy it at the going price. If our industries are not allowed to pay the going international price, they either don't get the steel or the government has to make up the difference between the artificial home-controlled price and the world-price. Spread an import subsidy like that around the whole range of our imports, and you have a tax bill which makes Mr. Abbott's present budget look like a church collection.

The same considerations apply to all the things we export in quantity. If exporters can get more from foreign countries than they are allowed to charge in the home market they will not sell in the home market. Unless, again, the government subsidizes their domestic sales. And the subsidies have to be paid for out of taxes.

A real all-out policy of price controls would mean insulating ourselves from the rest of the world. We tried to do it in the early part of the war and again

New York Too

New York Times

THE quickened public interest in smoke control in New York City is obvious. There is general enthusiasm for the sterner, more aggressive enforcement policy apparent in recent weeks. There are signs of life where there had been no life. The director of the Smoke Control Bureau and his deputy have been seen personally scrutinizing smoke coming from Consolidated Edison stacks; they have been hearing the continued complaints of officials at United Nations headquarters, harassed by fumes and soot. Admiral Maxwell has been flying over the city, taking photographs of the filth that means waste and nuisance. Warnings have been issued in great numbers; there have even been a few court summonses.

The question whether the present smoke control law shall be changed is controversial, but there seems fairly general agreement on one point. That is that the Smoke Control Bureau should be set up as an independent city agency, free of the control of any larger departments and reporting only to the mayor. It should have qualified engineers at the top. We should like to see the law changed to that extent.

WANTS LOCAL MAN

Listening to the election radio one gets tired of hearing about the things Mr. George has done. I thought last Sunday if Ralph Pashley stuck to his radio instead of telling us who we should vote for it would be better.

The people of Esquimalt should know that a man who is on their council and lives and pays taxes in the municipality knows more about them than a stranger looking for his own ends and running all over to conventions and tea parties.

C. S. WILLIAMS.
Esquimalt.

IN GOOD COMPANY

Two young Liberals, young in years and very young in experience, appear to be terribly shocked by the sudden discovery that Coalition candidate Percy George had previously bid for public office under two other party banners. Well! Well!

In 1900, that Grand Old Man of British politics, Mr. Churchill, was first elected to the House of Commons in Westminster as a Conservative. Less than five years later he became a Liberal. (He, of course, held many portfolios in subsequent Liberal administrations.) Then he became Constitutional, later returning to the Conservative fold. And it was not until several months after he had formed his Coalition government in the dark days of 1940 that he was persuaded to accept the leadership of the Tory party. Thus, in 1945, he went back to his old love of 1900.

So candidate Percy George is not in such bad company after all.

NOT HERE

If the C.C.F. were in power in B.C. with Labor members as bedfellows, I don't suppose they would be any better than the present government, as labor unions throughout the world are causing more trouble and unrest than any other factor, especially in the United States and Canada, where their continued demand for higher wages has caused untold suffering and bankruptcy. The C.C.F.'s affiliation with labor unions is probably the main reason why they have made such a poor showing at recent elections.

I might say I did quite a bit more than the average person to elect the C.C.F. in Saskatchewan and I would still support them if I was a resident of that province. But not in B.C. or in the federal field where they are affiliated with labor unions.

This doesn't mean that I am against labor. But only because I see that a large percentage of the working people are also suffering from the actions of big labor unions.

TOM CLARK.
Royal Oak.

NOT ENOUGH OPPOSITION?

The weakness in the present Coalition administration, for too long a Colossus with feet of clay, is partly due to there being far too small an Opposition in the Legislature. Hence Esquimalt would do a great service by sending a member who is not a Coalitionist.

On the other hand, should the government nominee be elected, the riding would endorse the present hospitalization set-up, lock, stock and barrel; cabinet dictatorship and cowed supporters; sales tax on clothing, boots and shoes, and meals in hotels and at lunch counters; gross extravagance which, in spite of record-breaking revenue, has forced the floating of a loan of $35,000,000; hard-ship to a large number of provincial civil

Reality Now

Montreal Star

N.A.T.O. has, after all, apparently reached the stage where each member's business has become the legitimate object of discussion and criticism by all. Having regard to the intense and sensitive jealousy with which a nation guards every aspect of its sovereignty, this is an advance. Above all, it means that the common purpose of the treaty is overriding the domestic problems and difficulties of each of its signatories. Great frankness apparently dominated the closed-door discussions. If N.A.T.O. has got to the point where the members can risk being rude to each other, the Atlantic Community may indeed become a reality instead of a dream.

service pensioners; the Buttle Lake mess; a top-heavy civil service; unsatisfactory government "control" of liquor; and denial of the right of the riding to be represented during the last session of the Legislature.

Surely the intelligent voter will have more sense than to register approval of the Coalition's conduct of affairs, which was such that two members crossed the floor of the House, while a third and his wife, nearly did.

Box 923.

BARHAM LYDDEN.

FOG OVER ESQUIMALT

The people of Esquimalt like those of other navy ports are quite accustomed to fog. Today they are faced with a triple threat along that line. Sea fog, forest-fire smoke, and political fog.

In the first place voters in border districts like Strawberry Vale do not know whether they vote in Saanich or Esquimalt. Some of them were on both lists during a recent provincial election.

Then there is the Coalition issue. Some newcomers to the riding who were Conservatives wonder just why Esquimalt, which was a Conservative constituency, should have been sold out to the Liberals in a supposedly fair deal between the Conservatives and Liberals.

Could it be just an example of the well-known Liberal strategy of making a deal with any promising Conservative politician? Did the Liberals say to Herb Anscombe what the snake said to the frog before he swallowed it, "Just relax and everything will be all right?" Or was it just the Conservative independence (or cussedness) which makes them prefer to fight with their friends rather than their enemies and wash their dirty linen in public?

Without leadership from either Victoria or Ottawa these political orphans are carrying quite a load. As for the Liberals their course is clear. They are firm believers in the pronouncement of the late Stephen Zweig: "In politics only the vanquished is wrong, and history strides over him with iron-clad heels."

Busmen Retire After Lengthy Service

Veteran B.C. Electric bus drivers Geoff. Noble, 1617 Jubilee Avenue, and Fred Hawkins, 3150 Davin Street, think back over their combined total of 79 years of street-car and bus driving. Both men have reached retirement age, after what they describe as "routine" career. Both plan to expand their gardening activities, while neither plans any extended travel. The men made their last runs today.

SCOUT AND CUB ACTIVITIES

Boys Training To Meet Emergencies In Field

By FREEMAN KING
Executive Scout Commissioner

Victoria District Scout troops are now getting under way for their fall training programs. This will include: First aid under field conditions as well as rescue and fire-fighting work. The real basis of their work will be to wards first-class scouting and being able to take care of themselves and others in case of emergency. This, of course, will greatly help civil defense in many ways.

On Sunday rover crews of the Victoria Lions' Own and the Fairfield Groups will make a cross-country orientating run by compass. This stunt will be over a route for about 4 to 5 miles, taking in bush, mountain, field and swamp land, and also will involve being able to get to a given place without the aid of a map.

TRAINING COURSE

A district training course for cub leaders will commence at 8 p.m. Oct. 8, at 1034 Johnson St. We have a very good registration so far and would be able to take a few more if anyone is interested. The course will run for four weeks one evening a week, and will comprise practical work as well as taking notes. New-comers to the work will be shown just how to run a cub pack to the best advantage.

The Victoria district is short of scoutmasters and would welcome anyone who would be willing to take a training course in that particular work. It is hoped that a course will be started in the near future.

CAN TELL STORY

Senior scout Sid Bell, who made the trip to Austria to attend the world jamboree, has some very interesting stories of world scouting to tell and would be willing to attend P.T.A. meetings or any service club meeting interested.

The Emmanuel Baptist Group has secured its group charter and will be presented on Sunday by the district commissioner.

Art Centre Needs 1,000 Members

Goal of 1,000 paid-up members as a basic necessity for successful operation of the Arts Centre of Greater Victoria has been set by directors, a spokesman, Ken McAllister, said today.

Present membership is about 400.

Directors set out tentative rentals for societies who wish to use the rooms at the new art centre in the former Spencer home on Moss Street and discussed the matter of affiliation fees for organizations devoted to the arts. No decision was made on the latter.

Establishment of the Arts Centre in its home is expected sometime in October. Mr. McAllister said interior of the home was in excellent condition, but the lighting would have to be changed gradually, to show exhibits to the best advantage.

"The Spencer house will give us a new and desirable form of setting," he said. "It will be informal rather than clinical. Altogether we feel the house will provide a much better education value."

THE CHURCH PAGE

By LANCE H. WHITTAKER

Rosh Hashono, the Jewish New Year, will be ushered in here at solemn religious services to start Sunday evening in Temple Eman-uel. The services, set for 8 Sunday and Monday evenings, and 9 on Monday and Tuesday mornings, will mark the beginning of the year 5712 in the Jewish calendar, which counts time from the traditional date of the world's creation.

Victoria's Jewish community will congregate for the 89th New Year to be celebrated in a capital city synagogue.

The Jewish New Year is observed differently from most other New Year holidays. It is celebrated in the synagogues, at worship services that are among the most serious and soul-stirring in the Jewish religion. The worshippers are told on Rosh Hashono that each of their deeds are known and judged by God. They meditate on His justice and mercy and on their own shortcomings, and they pray for the strength to follow the good and reject the evil. They pray for their fellowmen as well, and join in the hope that the New Year may see the world enjoying a new birth of righteousness under God.

A striking feature of the Rosh Hashono services is the sounding of the "shofar," a primitive wind instrument made of a ram's horn. Its shrill notes seem to deepen the solemnity of the service nowadays just as they did thousands of years ago, when the shofar was sounded by the Israelites of the Bible.

Jewish folklore has built around the Rosh Hashono-prayers the tale that on this day each person is judged according to whether he has done good or evil during the past year, and his fate for the coming year is decided on the basis of his goodness and in-scribed in Heaven. Consequently, Jews greet one another during the New Year season by saying, or by writing on Rosh Hashono cards, "May you be inscribed for a good year."

Observe Traditional Feast Day

To emphasize further their hope for a good and pleasant year, Jews have traditionally returned home from the Rosh Hashono services to a meal in which fruits, honey, and other sweet dishes were prominent.

Rosh Hashono, which is Hebrew for "beginning of the year," is primarily a spiritual occasion. It begins a period of soul-searching and prayer known as the Ten Days of Penitence. Their culmination is the somber fast day of Yom Kippur or the Day of Atonement, which will fall this year on October 10.

WEEKLY SERMON

World-Wide Communion Of Christians Needed

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.

Protestant churches throughout the world will be shortly celebrating World Communion Sunday, the day in which we they gather at the Lord's Table in their respective places of worship that solemn service will be marked by a consciousness of their fellowship with all Christians.

The word in the New Testament translated "communion" is the same word that in other passages is translated "fellowship." It would have been better if the idea of fellowship had never been absent from the idea of communion; and it would have been better if the idea of Christian fellowship had never been limited to those who partook of communion in a particular place, and with those only of their own group.

It seemed a travesty upon the great conception of Christian fellowship that the denominations and the sects should be known as "communities." In their limitations and narrowness they denied the magnitude and magnificence of Christian fellowship.

I suppose that, actually, devout worshippers however limited though their communion might be, had some conception of the larger fellowship of belonging to the church militant and the church triumphant, surrounded by a great cloud of witnesses. But the limitations of the communion too often symbolized a narrowness of vision, an ingrown sectarian sense, and a lack of willingness to unite with those of other "communities" in Christian activities.

So it is a good thing that barriers are breaking down, that

Presbyterians Celebrate At Old Kildonan Church

WINNIPEG (CP)—Old Kildonan Presbyterian Church, the parent Presbyterian Church of western Canada, began a four-day anniversary celebration Friday of its own centenary and 100 years of Presbyterianism in the west.

Friday marked the 100th anniversary of the first service held in Kildonan by Dr. John Black, pioneer Presbyterian minister, who arrived in the Red River settlement Sept. 19, 1852.

Highlights of the program were the opening address by the Rt. Rev. N. D. Kennedy of Regina, moderator of the general assembly; a report on the church in the west by Rev. Dillwyn Evans, Dean of Presbyterian residents, University of Saskatchewan; and an address by Rev. John S. Mackay of Saskatoon, past moderator of the synod of Saskatchewan.

Friday evening, Dr. Frank Morley of Calgary, and Dr. J. S. Glen, representing principal W. W. Bryden of Knox College, Toronto, will be guest speakers. Dr. Kennedy will preach the morning service Sunday in Old Kildonan Church, with an open-air service planned for the afternoon.

Further addresses will be given at Monday's concluding meetings. The centenary also will be observed Sunday at the Little Britain old stone United church, 16 miles north of Winnipeg.

More Jobs Here

Unemployment continued to drop this week in Victoria due to an increasing number of job vacancies, it was learned today from C. A. Mudge, manager of the National Employment Office.

Mr. Mudge said there are still many jobs available, especially for skilled workers.

"We need a number of auto mechanics, auto body and fender men and several skills connected with the shipbuilding trade," he said.

In the women's selection section, there are also a reduction in the number of unplaced applicants but there was no out-

Uses Chin As Target

NEW YORK (AP) — Lewis Howard, 31, stood at a Broadway shooting gallery last night with a 22-calibre rifle and fired away at three targets—a bullseye, some envelopes he tossed in the air, and his own chin. The envelopes, police said, contained suicide messages. Howard was taken to hospital in serious condition.

Five Rooms And Garage

"Efficiency plus" is the way to describe this lovely five-room home. Large living room with adjoining dining area, two bedrooms, kitchen and all purpose room make up the plans. Porch may be added later. Wrought iron trellis and brick at the front make a more interesting exterior. Attached garage.

Socred Chief Says B.C. Ready For 'Godly' Party

The reaction of B.C. people to Social Credit today is like that which prevailed in Alberta in 1933 and 1934 "when corruption in the government of Alberta nauseated the people."

This is the opinion of Solon Low, national Social Credit leader, who spoke here Friday.

Low said British Columbians are fired with a desire to put an honest government into power. They don't want people who talk one way and act another, he declared.

He added that Social Credit is a way of life based on Christian principles which will preserve democratic freedoms and the people's right to choose.

LEADER HERE

Low predicted B.C. will produce a leader like the "godly" man who arose in Alberta to lead the Social Credit movement to victory. He was referring to the late William Aberhart.

He urged greater participation by individual members of the party. If an election is not "sprung" too soon, and if enough individuals take off their coats and go to work, the objective can be accomplished, the leader said.

Low spoke at a luncheon meeting and later at the Britannia Hall.

Unusual Pictures Shown Alpine Club

Victoria section of the Alpine Club saw some of the most beautiful colored pictures ever taken by its members Friday night.

First seasonal meeting was held at the home of Dr. Irene Hudson, Miss Edith Vallance, Edmonton, showed the photographic slides taken at Lake O'Hara this summer, just west of the Great Divide, at 6,000 feet elevation.

Maj. Rex Gibson told of his reconnaissance for new camp sites for the club.

'Benefactor' Arrested

NEW YORK (AP)—A man praised widely for giving jobs to 18 blind persons was indicted yesterday for allegedly swindling them of overtime pay. Morris Kleiner and his photographic firm were convicted on 52 counts of cheating his workers of $2,038.

Clock Back, Delays C.P. Departure

Regular C.P.R. steamer night sailing from here to Vancouver will be delayed one hour tonight. The delay is planned because of the 2 a.m. Sunday time change, from daylight saving to standard. So that the ship will arrive at Vancouver at 7 a.m. Sunday, the vessel will not leave harbor here until 1 a.m.

The run tonight will be taken by the Princess Joan.

WINTER SCHEDULE

The new winter schedule for C.P.R. sailings between Victoria and Vancouver will take effect Sunday.

The day ship from Vancouver will leave 9:40 a.m. under the new schedule and will arrive at Victoria at 1:55. The Seattle steamer will leave here daily at 10 a.m., arriving at the U.S. port at 3:15.

Night steamer service between Victoria and Vancouver will be maintained with vessels leaving both ends of the run at 11:59 p.m., arriving 7 a.m.

Fined In Dog 'Murder'

DES MOINES (AP) — The charge was against his master but it amounted to conviction of Blackie, a four-year-old dog, for the "murder" of another dog, Harry Branscomb was fined $50 when Blackie was accused of killing Rex, a terrier owned by a neighbor. Branscomb was charged with harboring a vicious dog.

Flexible Doors Available to Local Builder

A "healthier," handier, cost-cutting interior door has made its debut on the Victoria building scene.

These ultra-modern closures are a space-saving boon, particularly to builders of small homes, and apartment dwellers, when used as doors for walk-in closets, as partitions, for concealing kitchenettes, or for similar purposes.

They also can be utilized with space and cost economy in schools, churches, institutions, commercial premises, and in industrial plants, as doors, or for the separation of rooms or departments.

Thousands are being used in large-scale housing developments and in plants in the United States. They are made from strong northern basswood splints. These are one-tenth of an inch thick and seven-eighths of an inch wide, and run vertically, woven together with tough seine twine, much like that used in fishnets. Four advantages are cited in connection with their use.

There is a substantial reduction in installation time and cost. This is because they can be easily hung (suspended from an ordinary transverse channel, and fitting of hinges and other door hardware, as well as "fitting-in" time associated with the conventional door is eliminated.

Because the flexible door folds to either side of the frame, space lost to the swinging, hinged door is saved.

There is a dollar saving per door unit in over-all cost (initial cost plus installation).

Finish-painted at the factory, the flexible doors do not require additional painting.

They come in a range of 11 standard lacquer enamel colors, to satisfy the taste of any decorator. A natural finish, which highlights natural graining and tone of the wood, also is available.

District Soccer Loop Bills Game At Athletic Park

The Victoria and District Football Association game between the Legion and Victoria West will be played at Royal Athletic Park tomorrow.

Association secretary Don Gray stated that costs for renting Athletic Park have been increased this season to three times the cost of a game at Lower Beacon Hill.

If the fans show enough support, the games will be played at the city park, but if not, they will be staged out at Beacon Hill. Alcos and Heaneys will meet today at Lower Beacon Hill, and Esquimalt will meet Duncan at the up-land site tomorrow. All games will start at 2:30.

Seth Halton Named 'Colonist' Publisher

Seth Halton has been named publisher of The Daily Colonist, president H. T. Matson announced Friday.

At the same time Fred C. Barnes, former news editor, was named to succeed the former managing editor, Mr. Halton.

Mr. Halton came to the Colonist immediately after his demobilization from the Canadian army in 1945. He held the rank of major.

CHRYSANTHEMUM MEETING

A "mum" competition for members of the Victoria and District Chrysanthemum Society will be held at the regular meeting of the club to be held Thursday night at 8 in the City Hall. Contestants are being asked to bring eight 'mum' blooms, three and five to a vase.

Sport Week

By JOHN LARDNER

My favorite dishonest baseball team, the Chicago White Sox of 1919-20, turned a noteworthy and wholly honest trick one year. It was in 1920, four Sox pitchers won more than 20 games each. The performance of the Cleveland Indians of 1951, in placing three pitchers in what is called the "charmed circle" of 20-game winners (it might as well be called the "sequestered square," or the "rarefied rhomboid," but why fight the old tradition?) is the best along the same lines since that time.

The White Sox of 1920 were the Black Sox of 1919. News of the unreliability of eight of its members did not break until near the end of the 1920 season by then, Eddie Cicotte and Claude (Lefty) Williams, who turned out to be black, White Sox, had won 21 and 22 games respectively. Two White Sox, Red Faber and Dick Kerr, achieved 23 and 21 wins that season.

It was this sort of thing that led the late Eddie Collins, looking back afterward, to describe the team as the best ball club ever put together. "All at the same time, we had the four best pitchers in the league," Mr. Collins once told me, forgetting Walter Johnson in the throes of his nostalgia, but otherwise probably speaking the plain truth. (For that matter, the great Johnson had begun to flag in 1919 and 1920, the years in question, so maybe Eddie's statement was entirely sound.)

Admirers of the Cleveland Indians of 1951 may argue that the lively ball makes pitching harder today than it was in 1920. Actually, there were strong elements of devilry in the 1920 ball, as indicated by Babe Ruth's record of 54 home runs that year. Still, I suspect that the 1951 ball is a hotter blend of hop and hare's blood than the first rabbit ball was, and I concede that Cleveland's pitching accomplishment this season has been remarkable generally.

Lardner

Hitters No Help To Hurlers

It's uncertain, as we storm to press, whether the Indians will win the pennant. But roughly half of their games to date have been complete pitching performances. If Robin Feller, Mike Garcia, and Early Wynn, the twenty-game winners, and Bob Lemon, who will miss twenty narrowly had had the hitting support of the likes of Eddie Collins and Shoeless Joe Jackson—but why go on?

"It's awful," sobbed Alfonso Lopez, the Cleveland manager, the other day, when his hitters marooned Lemon for the second time in a row. Apparently, the boys felt the sound of a friendly base hit might injure Bob's Eustachian tubes.

Take this matter of twenty-game winners. On the 1920 Sox, two, Faber and Cicotte, were spitballers, and two, Williams and Kerr were cute left-handers. In the National League of 1951, three of the twenty-game winners Warren Spahn, Sal Maglie, and Preacher Roe, are notable chiefly for breaking deliveries—curve balls and variations of curve balls—well controlled.

Times Have Slowed Down

Murry Dickson, the Pittsburgh gamster who is encroaching on twenty wins as I write this, answers the same description. In the American League, Ed Lopat, a twenty-game winner, throws stuff as gentle as spring rain, while Feller owes his return to the upper altitudes to his curve ball and improved control.

This is not to say that a fast-baller cannot get to the top any more. Robin Roberts, Vic Raschi, and Garcia rely mainly on the fast ball. Walter Johnson and Dizzy Dean, to go back a way, used practically nothing else. But I'm inclined to think that in today's game, which is what the stimulated pelota has made it, the surest way to pitching success is to have something to go with your fast ball, and to be able to hit a snake between the eyes with whatever you throw.

Fastballers, as a rule, are not remarkable for control. They never have been. There was a time when they didn't want to be. That was when even a fast ball, when hit, seldom went more than 300 feet without hearing the call of the law of gravity (subsequently repealed).

It Even Snaps At Strangers

"Mastering control requires constant practice," writes Prof. Harry Brecheen, in a recent book called "How to Play Big League Baseball." "You have to throw that ball every single day. You have to throw it for as long a time as possible."

And watch out that it doesn't turn in your hand and bite your fingers off.

PRO REC FEATURED

Rivalry Keen For Vic High Swim Tournament

By TED WHAN

Trapeze Ed Keller and his Pro Rec group will be the main attraction at the fifth annual Victoria High School inter-school gala to be held at 7:30 Oct. 12 at the Crystal Garden pool. Many of Victoria's swim stars will enter events in this gala in hope of gaining points for their respective houses.

Len Anderson, captain of House One, has lined up a powerful aqua team which is favored to regain the swimming championship which they won from House Four last year.

Setting the pace for the first house will be such swimmers as Don Donahue, Barry Givness, Garth Anderson, Bob Clarke, Bob Abbott and Charley Bishop.

NOVELTY EVENTS

Pete Kirchner from House Two will enter his specialty, the butterfly breast stroke, while from House Three Ted Lunt will be in there trying to win points in the 100-yard freestyle.

House Four, although considerably weakened in the girls' events by the graduating of Norma Stewart last year, still boast a strong boys' team and will attempt to regain the championship back from House One.

NOVELTY ACTS

Vic High's Jim Jahraus and Bob Abbott will put on a comedy diving display, which will give the competitors a break in events, and provide the spectators with profound amusement. Eight novelty races will exclude all possibility of the gala being uninteresting.

These will include the umbrella race, the Major Hoopie race, clothing race and the candle race.

HOLD PRACTICES

The competitors taking first and second place in each event will automatically become eligible for the Inter-High School Gala which will be held later in the month.

Practices and eliminations are being held at the Crystal Garden after school and swimmers trying out for positions in the gala are allowed in the pool at a reduced rate of 15 cents.

Fitzie Pruden Bows To Williams

NEW YORK (UP).—Don Williams, a former choir boy from Worcester, Mass., is making rapid strides in the welterweight division just by beating up Fitzie Pruden with monotonous regularity.

Employing a flashy left jab, Williams registered a unanimous decision over Pruden last night in their widely-televised 10-round bout at St. Nicholas Arena.

It was Williams' third victory in four bouts with Pruden, a native of St. Catharines, Ont., who gave welterweight champion Kid Gavilan a hard time before bowing in a recent bout.

RING TOSSERS MEET

Horseshoe Record May Be Set Sunday

Alex MacDonald has a tough job ahead of him this weekend. The popular little guy who made his name famous in rugby a few years ago and who just finished managing Foul Bay to the senior B lacrosse championship of Vancouver Island is wrapped up in a horseshoe tournament.

MacDonald is a perennial winner in the annual Island championships, having won the ringers tournament three times. On each occasion he has won with a score of 23 ringers in 50 tosses, a mark which stood as the tournament record until early this week.

In one of the preliminary rounds, Alex Fisher went on a torrid streak and straddled the post with 28 out of his 50 throws. Every contestant except MacDonald has had a try this week but none could better Fisher's mark.

Alex will be the last man with a chance to win the ringers crown but to do it he must set a new Island record of 29 or better. He makes his bid Sunday morning at the local grounds.

Sunday morning will also mark the concluding rounds in the Island doubles and singles championships. All contestants are requested to be on hand by 9 so that the games can get under way promptly.

The Rennie and Taylor Cup, emblematic of the city horseshoe pitching doubles championship, was won by Andrew Kushner and W. G. Green this week.

Reynolds' No-Hitter Clincher For Bombers; Brooks Bounced

The gallant New York Giants, tied for first place after wiping out a 13½-game Brooklyn lead, threaten to elbow into the world series with New York Yankees in one of baseball's greatest comebacks.

With the Yanks already "in" after Allie Reynolds' no-hitter and yesterday's double win over Boston, the Giants rate an even chance to charge past the fading Dodgers who lost to the Phillies last night, 4-3.

In years to come they'll talk

On the OUTDOOR FRONT

By ROY THORSEN

The registered derbyist who lands the largest coho during the Thanksgiving week-end derby of the Cowichan Bay Salmon Club from Oct. 6 to 8, inclusive, will receive prizes worth more than $300.

The derbyist who catches the heaviest coho of the three days not only wins the $100 cash prize for reeling in the biggest specimen on any one of those three days but also takes possession of the $215 combination radio-phonograph.

This top prize decision was made at a directors' meeting Friday morning.

Prior to that the derbyist who boated the biggest coho was to have the $100 daily prize and the music box, Lee Hallberg tells us.

Many fisherman with both eyes alive and active have a tough time getting fish... but Capt. M. C. Robinson, Vancouver, who has a summer camp at Parksville, can catch 'em without the sight of his eyes.

"He's blind, but that man can catch more fish, and perform every operation the average man does, than most people who angle these waters," said Jack L. Stevens, Parksville, to this reporter.

We heard about Capt. Robinson's unique piscatorial qualities from Victoria's William Hawkins, who is with Joe Gibault in the new fishing and gun shop on View Street.

Stevens, by the way, said that the showing of coho up that way has been the best in the history of the area at the present time. He admits, however, that while the showing is wonderful, the fish haven't been too eager for the angling clan's lures.

It's a like picture at Cowichan Bay. There's a lot of coho showing but they aren't particularly lure-hungry.

The hunting fraternity is vexed at the forestry department—because they did not open the forests to Joe Bloo on Friday or Saturday nights instead of tomorrow night at midnight.

"Under present wetted-down conditions in the forests the chances of causing a forest fire are remote. Making the forests open to the hunter Monday has left the woods open to a comparative few who don't have to work for a living. Us lunch-bucket variety hunters haven't a chance of trying our luck on the game trails until next week-end," was the beef of one hunter to this reporter.

Try This One For Size

There is a growing opinion in sportsmen's ranks that if forest closures stop the hunting clan from following their sport, the seasons should be extended to give the nimrods the same length of time on the same trails.

Best hard-luck story in the fishing ranks I have heard for some time is the experience of the quintet angling the Gulf Islands' lucrative fishing currents.

It happened last week-end. On Stan Harris' boat were Bill Osborne, our business end, Harry Young, and Roy and Graham Harris. Considering everything, they did very well, two jack springs and 10 grise. The only trouble is that when they arrived back to anchor the fish had disappeared. It appears that skipper Stan put the finny catches in a box at the rear that was flush with the railing. When the boat hit a trough made by another craft the box apparently slid overboard unbeknown to all the crew.

The sad story was revealed when someone went to get the fish to divvy them after the boat had arrived back at its anchorage.

"Well I did suggest we cook and eat some of them on board—and the moral of this story could be that a fish in the belly is better than no fish at all," commented the disgruntled Young.

Grise continue to be the main offering in the waters off Victoria and Oak Bay. Some of the anglers are catching a few coho and springs.

Roger Monteith tells us that Forbes Landing trout fishing (Lower Campbell Lake) is at present the best it has ever been. Our island tourist publicity commissioner, George L. Warren, and a party of four enjoyed wonderful fishing there this week.

Monteith says that the mouths of Jordan and Sooke Rivers are offering a fine brand of sea trout as a coho fishing at the present time.

Local Party Hits Trout Mecca

"You haven't tasted good fishing until you hit the T'ell River on Queen Charlotte Islands. It's not only wonderful... it's simply astounding," says Victoria's Fred Barr.

Fred returned from the northern island late last week with a party "who had no trouble at all getting their limits of trout and coho, spinning or with fly."

On the trip with Barr were English car speed record-maker Capt. Eyston, G. Hummel of Victoria, Kenneth Kroege of this town, W. Hattavorth of Beverly Hills, Calif., and a quartet from Texas.

"You can get your limit every day and any day," said Barr.

In Saanich Inlet this week rough weather kept a lot of the regulars away, but those who went out did well, according to boathouse operators at Goldstream and Brentwood Bay. Grise are the most plentiful, coho and jacksprings in smaller numbers also being taken.

Biggest salmon we've heard of being caught in Victoria and district was the 47-pound spring reeled in by W. Waller this week in Swartz Bay. He didn't stop there, also taking four coho, largest 16 pounds.

From now on, if nothing else is offered, Saanich Inlet will have a good winter population of grise for those who want to go after them in under winter weather conditions.

Monteith tells us that one of the best Cowichan Bay catches this week was A. J. Corlett's: a 17-pound coho, two more going 11 pounds, and two one pound less.

Great Revival Planned For Shuttle Club

Victoria Lawn Tennis and Badminton Club is going all out to encourage the development of new badminton players. The club has already built up its membership to nearly 400 this season.

Coaching will be available to all players who need it, and Daryl Thompson, Canadian and British Columbia champion and International Thomas Cup player, will give a number of exhibitions throughout the year to encourage and help the youngsters along.

As this is the year of the Thomas Cup matches, it is hoped that exhibition games may be staged here. There is also a possibility that the B.C. championships will come to Victoria this year.

Since last year the badminton hall has been re-roofed, the floor re-varnished, and the clubrooms refurbished.

Club officials hope to be able to supply plastic shuttlecocks to the club members this year. It has been found that these new shuttlecocks outlast the old feather ones.

Club members wishing to use the badminton courts may do so every day except Saturdays, officials announce. Play on week days will be from 3 in the afternoon to 11 at night.

Official opening for the Badminton Hall will take place on Sunday at 3 o'clock.

DON'T BLAME IT ON JOE!

Ten Years' Headaches All Arrive Together

By DENNY BOYD

Everyone in Victoria knows the multiplicity of troubles that have dogged Victoria's ice emporium, and some people are inclined to think of "that darn arena" and Joe Dukowski in the same breath without bothering to remember that the construction of the arena was finished when Joe took over the management and that he didn't build it.

What with time-clocks that fall down, roofs and ceilings that crack and leak, ice making machines that don't, and lights so high up that it takes a crew of men and a scaffold to bulb-snatch, it's little wonder that Joe not only works there every daylight hour, but dreams about it at night.

Yesterday for instance, after inspecting every nook and cranny in the arena, he left his office to go home for a brief respite. He hopped out into the street, looked around and then mumbled, "Now where did I leave my car?"

Joe is confident that all the troubles can be cleared up. "This is a beautiful arena," he says, "something that Victorians should be proud of instead of treating as a white elephant. Everything that has happened to it lately happens to all arenas sooner or later but it just seems we have had 10 years of trouble in one."

AN AUTHORITY

Joe is an authority on arenas. He has worked in them ever since he was a rink rat eight years old. From a lowly ice scraper at Regina's Queen City Gardens, he rose through the ranks of ice maintenance man, cashier, door-keeper, office-staffer, assistant manager and finally manager a position which he held for nine years before coming to Victoria.

His own athletic career, in hockey and lacrosse is as colorful as his arena career. He is the younger brother of "Duke" Dukowski, famed defenseman with Chicago Black Hawks of the N.H.L. a few years ago. Joe played with the Regina Pats in 1930 when they won the Canadian junior championship. His fearful rink-length rushes prompted one sports writer to say, "If they left the door open at the end of the rink, Joe would go right through and skate to Montana."

FIGHTS FOR FANS

The fight that Dukowski made to get the seventh game of the Intercity Lacrosse League finals played in Victoria is reminiscent of the time when, as a member of the Regina Pats, he lobbied to have strong junior teams come to Regina giving the home-town fans the opportunity to see top flight hockey.

Not satisfied with interesting his teammates in this venture, he wrote a series of articles in the papers telling hockey fans why Regina deserved to have the best hockey entertainment.

He lives in Victoria now, but his opinions regarding local fans are just the same. He insists on the best for the people who paid for the arena.

Leger's Questions May Receive Answers Tonight

By BILL WALKER Times Sports Editor

SASKATOON—As the family pooch said when it backed into the lawn mower, "Well, it won't be long now."

And it won't. For tonight at precisely 8:30 (7:30 Victoria time) the first edition of the 1951-52 Cougars will go on review when the Cats meet Saskatoon Quakers in an exhibition game.

Upwards of 3,000 fans are expected to sit-in on the first pre-season skirmish of the Pacific Coast Hockey League campaign and the general feeling is that the Quakers will take the marbles.

There's two reasons for this thought.

One is that the coach, Bill Cook, of the Quakers, is using this game as a trial for 18 of the 26-player squad he intends to trim to near the league-approved limit of 17 men by Tuesday.

The other is that the Cougars intend to play a close-checking game, or as coach Roger Leger said Friday, "I don't care if we lose; I just want to keep the score down."

The Cougars will strip 14 men for the game—the same 14 men who went through another grueling two-hour workout Friday.

As predicted yesterday, Leger will team up with slender 22-year-old Leon Bouchard on one defensive unit with Flori Goegan and Bernie Strongman, last year's penalty killer, forming the second rearguard combination.

The Kid Line of Reg Abbott, Andy Heberton and Bob Frampton will be used as one forward unit, with unsigned yet Eddie Dorohoy working between Jack McIntyre and rangy Bob Bowness. Joe Evans and Joe Medynski will flank Don Lardner on the third attacking trio.

QUAKERS WELL OFF

For Saskatoon it will be Lorne Worsley, rookie award winner and outstanding goalkeeper in the United States Hockey League last year, opposing Victoria's Jim Shirley between the pipes.

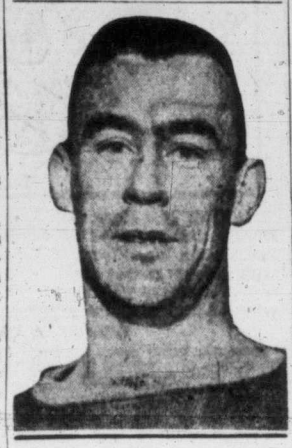

Defensively, Cook has named Howie Milford, Bill Hiendl, Murray Parker, Don Crough and Bill Gloskas to divide the duties. Milford, Hiendl and Parker are from last year's Quaker amateur club, while Gloskas will be remembered as a member of the Tacoma Rockets from the New York Rovers.

Centres listed are Ken Hunter and Bob Wiest of last year's Quakers, and Tom Fowler from St. Mike's.

Wingmen will be Neil Strain from Denver, Jack Shave of Milwaukee, Ab McDougall of Regina, Julius Swick and Bob Manson from the Rovers, and Ching Dheere, Rouse and Ramsden were with Saskatoon last year, while Dheere was acquired from Tacoma. Few of the Quakers have been signed to contracts although it was officially announced Friday that Cook had landed a prize plum in former N.H.L. star Alex Kaleta.

Kaleta has all but inked his form and will in all probability be seen against the Cougars Monday night when Cook will give the other eight members of the bulky but promising squad an opportunity to strut their stuff.

"After Monday's game," said Cook, "I'll cut the team down to size." Leger on the other hand has no such problem. It's catch as catch can for big Rog.

He has 14 men and that's all. And he's stuck with them until Monday at least.

BOWNESS IMPRESSES

Bowness has a style comparable with Eddie Mazur's high-stepping gait and is built along the same proportions of the former Cougar left-winger. Bouchard, who suffered a mild attack of "flu" during the night, is a stand-up rushing type of defenseman who reminds one of Vancouver Canucks' Larry Rardon.

Outstanding in Friday's session was Shirley. The slender net minder, who makes his home in Saskatoon, was particularly impressive as the "Kid Line," still the best combination the Cougars own at the moment, ripped through the defense for several point-blank tries, only to be beaten by Shirley.

OLD SCOTCH WHISKY

IN THE REIGN of William III of England (1689-1702) a Coldstream Guardsman named John Hatfield was tried by court martial on the charge of having fallen asleep while on sentry-go at Windsor Castle. As proof that he was awake at the crucial time, he claimed to have heard "Great Tom" of Westminster, over twenty miles away, chime thirteen times at midnight! This defence, which sounded so improbable, was, on investigation, proved to be justified and the soldier was acquitted. When he died in 1770, at the age of 105, he took his alibi to the grave with him—it was inscribed on the coffin plate.

For centuries, bells have been used as messengers; calling from the schoolhouse or the church—sounding the alarm or announcing a victory. A glass of Bell's Scotch Whisky is a fine messenger of goodwill. It's rich with over a century's experience of distilling and blending—keep it for yourself and for your best friends.

Fireman Volunteers To Coach James Bay Boxing Club Kids

Jim Audain, president of the Vancouver Island Amateur Boxing Association, looked at his greying hair in the mirror this morning and gave a sigh of relief. A man had been found to train the youngsters in the James Bay Athletic Hall.

The volunteer is Roy Reeves, a Victoria fireman. Jack Harper, another follower of the flames, has volunteered to help Reeves train the youngsters.

Both smoke-eaters have had a wealth of experience in the pugilistic field. Roy Reeves was in the ring in Saskatoon, and Jack Harper did some boxing in the army.

However, Daddy Audain's reign of relaxation was short-lived. Another vexing problem has arisen.

The James Bay Athletic Hall does not have any shower facilities for use after workouts.

Already, the silver fox of boxing has licked one angle of the ticklish situation. Members of the Victoria Fire Department have volunteered to install the showers in the hall if some kind, good natured, unselfish plumber will donate the fixtures.

So come on, you plumbers, why let the kids fight on the streets when they can fight inside a nice warm hall?

Receives Burns

CALGARY (CP) — Frank Zima, 30, suffered first and second-degree burns when a pot of paint exploded in his face today while working.

Someone was believed to have accidentally tossed a lighted match or cigarette near the pot which had a heavy gasoline content.

Argo Mentor Ready To Defend Action

TORONTO (CP)—Frank Clair, the studious coach of the champion Toronto Argonauts, today prepared to ward off the wrath of Toronto football fans for his firing Al Dekdebrun as the club's quarterback because he considered Dekdebrun's passing arm had gone dead.

Dekdebrun, a favorite with Toronto crowds and the key man in the Argos' march to the Dominion championship last season, was told last night in a one and one-half hour conference with Clair that he had lost his job as quarterback to Nobby Wirkowski, a 23-year-old import from Miami University in Oxford, O.

The news stunned the city's football fans and some Argo players were reported to have voiced resentment of the unexpected move.

CLOSE ENOUGH TO HEAR ENGINES

Non-U.S. Subs Reported

By PETER J. HAYES

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (UP)—The U.S. Army, Navy and Air Force are investigating the sighting of submarines "definitely not American" off the coast of Kenai Peninsula, less than 160 miles from Anchorage, a high military source said today.

The military official, who would not permit use of his name, revealed that two U.S. fish and wildlife agents sighted the submarines, one on Aug. 28, and the other on Sept. 12.

Investigating officers "definitely" ruled out the possibility that the reported subs were U.S. vessels.

Donald Cross, field and wildlife service field agent, was revealed to have told a joint army-navy-air force investigating board last week that he saw a submarine of the German

Snorkel-type surface off Dick

Arm at 2 p.m. Aug. 28. Dick

Arm is on the tip of the Kenai

Peninsula, southwest of Anchorage.

Cross told the board he got into his small boat and paddled away from the area. He said he was close enough to the sub to hear the sound of its Diesel engines and the peculiar suction sound of its Snorkel apparatus.

Cross said he could not comment on the report because military intelligence officers had contacted him and ordered him not to discuss it with anyone.

Splinter Group History Dismal

Story Of Failure Twice Repeated Discouraging To Experimenters

By GORDON FORBES

The history of splinter groups in British Columbia politics has been anything but spectacular.

The possibility of formation of a new party by W. A. C. Bennett of Kelowna in the province is causing political students to recall two recent memorable periods when splinter groups took sound beatings.

The first was in the 1924 general election when General A. D. McRae's "Provincial Party"—a splinter group from the Conservative Party—was trounced, winning only three seats in the Legislature.

June 21 of that year the Victoria Times' lead story of the election said:

"The Oliver government was returned to power by a slim majority in an election which defeated the leaders of two major parties, blotted out the new Provincial Party, linked Greater Victoria with the Opposition and left behind an aftermath of doubt and uncertainty."

In that year the Liberals elected 24 members, Conservatives 17, Labor three, Provincial Party three and Independents one.

AMALGAMATION IN HOUSE

The Times further said: "The amalgamation of the Conservatives and the Provincials in the House is taken as a matter of course and the government counts upon them to present a solid front in opposition."

"The Provincial Party was crushed by the election, and disappeared as a factor in the provincial situation. The Provincials elected only three members in place of the 'working majority' which it had expected. This came as a bitter blow to the Provincial Party leaders who believed they would sweep the country."

"B.C. thus settles back to old party lines after a brief but hectic experience with a third party."

Lions Lurked Behind Vats—Just For Day

Members of the Victoria Lions' Club were taken on a tour of inspection through the Victoria Phoenix Brewery plant Friday.

Brewery manager Vic Clark, a member of the club, told the luncheon meeting in the Empress Hotel of the history of his firm, established in 1858.

Origin of the brewing industry here was traced to the opening of the Crimean War, when a brisk trade in grain grown in this area was operating on the basis of exchange for furs from Russian-owned Alaska.

Outbreak of war stopped the trade, and the grain was then diverted to a new brewing industry.

Chinook Logs 1000th Trip Across Gulf

Mv. Chinook, which will enter drydock in Seattle next week for overhaul, has made more than 1,000 trips out of that American city since she first went into service in mid-1947.

The Chinook notched up her 1,000th trip out of Pier 53 last Thursday.

Since her first Seattle-Port Angeles-Victoria run, Black Ball Ferry officials estimate the ship has carried 886,267 passengers—about two-thirds of B.C.'s total population.

She has logged off more than 403,875 miles, and has handled 204,888 motor vehicles and 399,050 tons of freight.

Pollit Greets Reds

TOKYO (AP)—Peiping radio today broadcast a message of greeting it said came from Harry Pollit, general secretary of the British Communist party. The message attacked Britain's "Torjes and right-wing Labor leaders" for co-operating with the United States.

BEDTIME STORY

by Thornton W. Burgess

The lesson learned, though learned through pain. In time you'll count as needed gain.

Old Mr. Toad is quite right in that saying of his. Yes, sir, he is quite right. Young Toad didn't think so when he saw the tail of a big Earthworm disappear in Old Mr. Toad's big mouth, and saw Old Mr. Toad roll his golden eyes in pleasure as he swallowed two or three times. You see, Young Toad had caught that very worm and had tried in vain to swallow it. He had started at the tail end, and the head end had pulled the tail end out as fast as it was swallowed.

He had done his best, trying to push that worm into his throat as he swallowed it, but having it pull back as fast as he pushed it down. At last that worm had pulled itself wholly out of Young Toad's mouth. It was then that Old Mr. Toad showed how a worm should be swallowed. He grabbed it by the head end and it went down his throat head first with no trouble at all. Young Toad had learned how it should be done, but he had lost the worm and he felt pretty sore about it. He considered that that worm was his, and he said so.

Old Mr. Toad's lovely eyes twinkled more than ever. "How could I show you the right way to swallow a big worm without swallowing it?" he asked.

Young Toad couldn't answer that one. He didn't try. He went off in a huff. He found a hairy caterpillar, and although he preferred smooth caterpillars, he swallowed this one and straightway felt better. He topped this off with half a dozen big ants who were out later than they should have been.

He caught a fly who came too near for his own good and then he saw, just ahead of him, a worm that was even bigger. It was crawling away from him. What do you think Young Toad did just then? He remembered the lesson Old Mr. Toad had taught him. Although the tail end of that worm was under his very nose and all he had to do was open his mouth and grab it, he did nothing of the kind. Instead, he made two or three quick hops until he was ahead of that crawling worm. Then he turned and picked up that worm by the head. With both hands he began stuffing it down his throat head first. Of course the worm didn't like it. Who would like being swallowed? It wriggled and wriggled, and wriggled as it might it couldn't wriggle back out. With both hands Young Toad had hold of that wriggling worm and kept pushing it into his mouth. It took a long time to swallow it, but at last it was down in his stomach and Young Toad had that same comfortable feeling that old Mr. Toad had had when he swallowed the first worm.

"I do believe the old fellow knew what he was talking about," said Young Toad to himself. Of course he should have been more respectful in speaking of Old Mr. Toad. The latter had been watching and had chuckled as he watched.

Army Doctors Go To Rescue By Parachute

OTTAWA (CP)—Medical teams equipped to do surgical operations on the battlefield will leap into action with Canada's paratroopers in any defense of Canadian soil, the army said Friday.

It said Canada's first airborne army medical unit—the 37th Field Ambulance of the R.C.A.M.C.—has reached an advanced stage of preparation at Camp Borden, Ont.

The unit is the medical component of the mobile striking group, the paratroop and airborne formation earmarked for the defense of Canada and known as the 23rd Brigade.

Under Lt.-Col. Clive B. Caswell, 41, of Ormsby, Ont., the 37th Field Ambulance began paratroop training last fall at the Rivers, Man., base which has turned out thousands of these specialist soldiers in the last few years.

Once the men learned how to jump, to pack and lash equipment in transport planes and how to go airborne in gliders, they went to Camp Borden to apply these basic lessons to the requirements of their own craft.

The heart of the unit's flying component is the surgical team. Three such teams—one for each fighting infantry battalion—are ready to jump into the battlefield. Each surgical team, consisting of a surgeon, an anesthesiologist, operating room assistants and medical assistants, will drop with complete field operating room equipment including surgical instruments, drugs and dressings.

Soviets May Well Wish To Avoid War—Pearson

MONTREAL (CP)—External Affairs Minister L. B. Pearson said Friday night it may well be that Russia, faced with growing western strength and unity, "will now wish... to avoid open conflict."

But, he added in a major speech, it would be a purely tactical decision. Russia would pursue her aim of world rule through other channels, including more and more "hypocritical" peace appeals.

At least until the end of 1954, he suggested in a speech prepared for the National Council of Women, there will be acute danger. There would be danger for years after that.

To his suggestion that the west's rearmament may already have achieved its primary purpose of deterring general aggression, even though any letdown could be fatal, he added these sobering thoughts:

"We are competing in both a sprint and a marathon... It may be that if we have achieved our defense objectives by, say, the end of 1954, we will have surmounted the most acutely dangerous period.

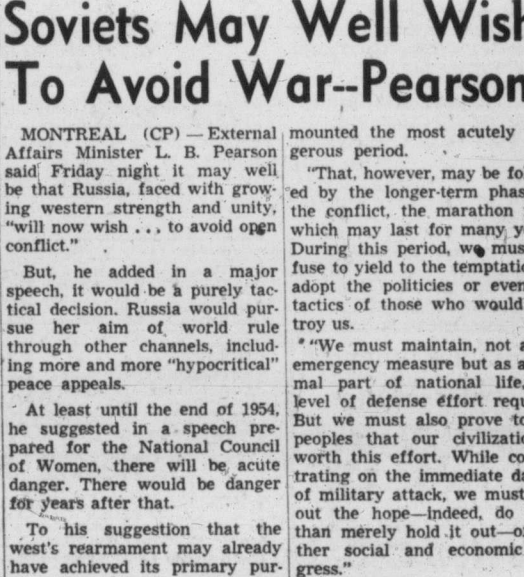

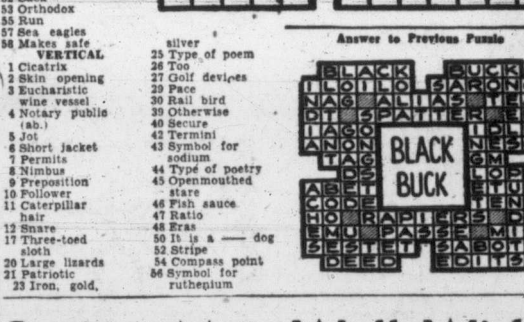

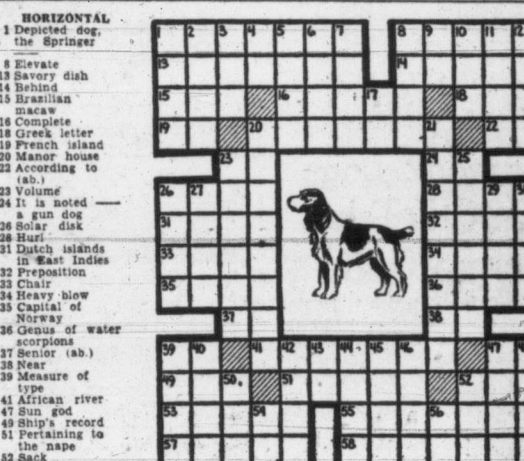

"That, however, may be followed by the longer-term phase of the conflict, the marathon race, which may last for many years. During this period, we must refuse to yield to the temptation to adopt the policies or even the tactics of those who would destroy us.

"We must maintain, not as an emergency measure but as a normal part of national life, the level of defense effort required. But we must also prove to our peoples that our civilization is worth this effort. While concentrating on the immediate danger of military attack, we must hold out the hope—indeed, do more than merely hold it out—of further social and economic progress."

HISTORIC RIVER

The River Liffey, which divides Dublin into two parts, is crossed by 12 bridges—six of stone and six of iron.

The first Eddystone lighthouse was a wooden structure built in 1696 to guard dangerous rocks near Plymouth.

Franchot, Barbara Are Married In Actress' Hometown

CLOQUET, Minn. (AP)—Franchot 'Tone' of the movies tonight married Barbara Payton, the film starlet over whose affections he fought with Tom Neal two weeks ago in Hollywood. It was the third marriage for both.

The film couple spoke their vows in a simple, white frame house, in the presence of only a few relatives and friends. Cloquet is the actress' hometown.

"I never felt better in my life," said Tone, still wearing a blood-shot eye and swollen lips from the Neal affray.

Judge Ed J. Johnson, probate jurist for the 7,663 Cloquet residents, read the service.

The bride and Tone left immediately with the wedding party of 15 for a dinner at some undisclosed place.

A-Corny Story

Mebbee it's true. & I guess it's so, from a tiny acorn, does a sturdy oak grow. This is profound, many maintain, but the acorn to me, is just a pest-pain. If I've raked up one, I've gathered a million, from russia brown to violent vermillion. I pull 'em in piles, plus the leaves that are clingers. I even stoop down & scoop with my fingers. I occasionally sit, relaxing my girth, wondering how... they dig in the earth. Can't figure it out, my thinking a-garbles, so I get rather playful & even shoot marbles. My mind goes back, as I shoot & fool, beside the cordwood at the Boy's Central School. There we played marbles on the hard packed ground, & I was as usual... all knuckle-bound. And so while I dream there by the shed, another one drops & konks on my head. "These D-fool things" I say & arise, I pick up the rake, & try & devise; some quicker way to gather 'em up, 'cause I'm telling you sister, I'm getting fed-up. I think of "her" vacuum, could it be? but I KNOW she'd have her eye on me. So on I rake, the lawn all a-smear, then another one hits, & smack on my ear. Wouldn't for a moment, your pretty ear lend, these chertfield suites... they really send. Just one-sixty-nine.

all U need pay, for dusty rose, forest-green, or grey. I get the mower, which sloppily cuts, determined I am, to crack these nuts. Away I push, all over the place, more fly up and hit in my face. The blades get stuck, fast is a twig. I go in reverse with my nut-cracking rig. I try to stay calm

& not get sore. I've got twice as many... as I had before. And harder to rake, now split in half, then out comes coffee with the better 's. "Come," she beckons, "let's sit in your shed." I take my shirt, & go where "My," she soothes, with on her face, "you did a with this little place. I think... and she looked about, "I would be better, with all the cement out." This she said in rather a joke, "Yeah... I know... the paper bag broke." She gazed at me, a sorta reproof, a couple more acorns fell on the roof. "Would you like to play marbles?" she smiled her O.K. ALL the nuts aren't in oaks, out here in Oak Bay. Yet this one's making sure, with rake & hoe, no more in OUR yard with another oak grow. 'Cause while these pests bounce off the eaves, still to follow are those millions of leaves. Just clinging up there, brittle, brown-skinned, smirking & waiting for... THE FIRST BIG WIND.

HUIIBER'S "Barley," "Corny" and "Brucie" Kitty Corners to the Rear of the new Post Office NOTE TO OUR CUSTOMERS... You asked for it... so NOW we've got it. An 8 Cu.-Ft. WESTINGHOUSE REFRIG. for only $319.00. Come see, eh??? Yr. 2 Pay.

SEEING THE MOVIES

... With Cecil Maiden

"THE LADY WITH A LAMP"
Royal: At 1.49, 4.18, 6.47, 9.21.
Cast: Anna Neagle, Michael Wilding, and many star British names in the smaller parts. Adapted from Reginald Berkeley's play. Directed by Herbert Wilcox.

This could have been a great picture. It is only a good one. Here and there we are given flashes of high and moving drama, and when the story really moves it achieves both dignity and distinction. But either the part of Florence Nightingale was too big for Anna Neagle, or Anna Neagle was overplayed by the part. The figure she creates seldom comes to life, and is for most of the story, cramped by a restraint and a punctiliousness that become just wearing.

Having decided that the picture was to retain the grammatical precision of Victorian speech (you get so tired of "I do not" instead of "I don't," and "Let us now return" instead of "Let's go back") you would have thought that Producer-Director Wilcox would have loosened up the picture in other directions. He didn't. At several places in the long, long story you even begin to have a feeling that this is where you came in—but realize in time that history is merely repeating itself at a later period in Miss Nightingale's life.

WILDING GOOD
As Sydney Herbert (later Lord Herbert) Britain's war minister in the Palmerston cabinet, Michael Wilding gives a fine, sensitive performance which brings both warmth and humanity to some overlong scenes in the House of Commons. They are scenes which are masterpieces of exactness as to setting and parliamentary discussion—and are therefore inevitably tedious.

A whole galaxy of big British stage and screen names enrich this picture with their presence. But that, alas, is all the script allows them to do, and with two merciful exceptions (an excellent character study of Florence Nightingale's mother, and another—by Sybil Thorndike—as the companion of her later years) they soon become "set" into the curious, animated-card-board figures made fashionable by the leading lady.

SETTING FINE
Miss Neagle, however, has two grand moments. One occurs when she clears a whole dining room by an outspoken use of the word "prostitute." The other is at the end of the great nurse's life when she receives—almost too close to death to realize its significance—the medal that Britain awarded so pitifully late.

The costumes are magnificent. The London of the period is superb. Music is true to period. The photography is in places the best aspect of the picture.

But, oh, how much better this great gathering of the talents should have been!

Italian Tenor Engaged For Recital Here

Noted Italian tenor of the Metropolitan Opera Co., Giuseppe Di Stefano will appear in recital for the first time here at the Royal Theatre, Oct. 17, for Famous Artists Ltd. The 28-year-old singer is currently on his second U.S. and Canadian concert tour. Since his Metropolitan debut in February, 1949, as the Duke in "Rigoletto," Di Stefano has confined his engagements to North and South America. This summer, however, he returned to Italy for the first time since his U.S. debut. His tour of opera houses in Rome, Naples, Verona and Sicily turned into a triumphal welcome. With him was his American wife, the former Maria Girolami, who became his bride nearly two years ago. Di Stefano's arrival in the U.S. came after a rapid rise, extraordinary even in Italy where many artists are found digging ditches and washing dishes. It was only two years before his Met premiere that Di Stefano stepped into the buckled shoes and powdered wig of the ardent Des Grieux in "Manon" to make his bow at the Regio Emilia, a provincial opera house.

Barbara Ann Denies Feud With Sonja

NEW YORK (CP)—Barbara Ann Scott said Friday she does not know why there should be any ill feeling between herself and Sonja Henie, who will have a touring ice show of her own. The Canadian skating star arrived by plane from London to start training for "Hollywood Ice Review" which opens in Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 7. The former world-figure skating champion was accompanied by Michael Kirby of Toronto, who played the male lead opposite Miss Scott in an ice version of "Rose Marie" in London for 12 weeks. Kirby has been Miss Henie's leading man for four years. Miss Scott's salary has been estimated at more than $100,000 annually although her contract for "Hollywood Ice Review" is not expected to run for a year. The show is under the management of Arthur Wirtz, previously manager of the Sonja Henie ice show.

De Carlo Reports Exotic Epics Win Over Natives

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Sultry Penticton-born Yvonne de Carlo, who has slithered through many an exotic epic, has returned from the Near East with a new respect for such films. She found the folks love 'em over there.

Miss de Carlo, first film star to perform in Israel, reported she played to riotous audiences there. Before her trip, she was not very fond of the "Arabian Nights" type of film she has often appeared in.

"But I was amazed at how much the people liked those pictures," she remarked. "I talked to many natives—cab drivers, hair dressers, hotel clerks—who said they had seen 'Scheherazade' four and five times. And they seemed to have liked 'Casbah,' too, although I don't know why."

FIRST ACTRESS
Eddie Cantor, Jascha Heifetz and Leonard Bernstein have appeared in Israel. But Miss de Carlo was the first film personality to entertain in the new country.

"It would have happened to any film performer playing there," she said modestly. "At every performance, there were civilian and military policemen to hold back the crowds."

"My biggest worry was getting into the theatre. The people individually were very respectful, but you know what mobs can do. I was never certain of getting out alive."

Miss de Carlo is about the travelling actress around. Whenever she isn't busy on the movie stages, she is packing up

Royal Pair's Train Tested

MONTREAL (CP)—The 10-car special train which will carry Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh on their cross-country tour is being tested daily in the Point St. Charles shops of the Canadian National Railways.

The train is a combined effort of the C.N.R. and the Canadian Pacific Railway and shows the great detail put into the planning for the Royal pair's comfort.

The rear car is for the use of the Princess and her husband. The suite is made up of two bedrooms, a dressing room and a bathroom. The bed and dressing rooms of the Princess are painted shell pink and have brown carpets. Blending with this scheme are dust pink damask coverings and taffeta drapes. The bathroom is decorated with mauve tile and white fixtures.

In the Duke's bedroom the drapes and coverings are of blue and white glazed chintz. The woodwork is cream, and a light brown carpet covers the floor.

Back of the sleeping accommodation is a sitting room. Its main feature is a special telephone installed for the Princess' convenience.

The train itself, unlike the Royal blue one which carried the King and Queen across Canada 12 years ago, is not painted a particular shade. The Canadian Pacific cars are red and the Canadian National cars are green.

The antelope of Central and South Africa is called a springbok because of the long distances it can leap.

ACROSS THE PROVINCE

To Ask Hay Aid Of Government

NANAIMO, B.C. (CP)—The government will be asked by the Farmer's Institute to assist in securing hay to maintain livestock herds.

Decision to seek government aid was made Friday at the annual convention here attended by farmers from all parts of Vancouver Island and Gulf Islands.

Because of the long drought, hay is in short supply and it was reported the undue slaughtering of cattle will endanger the milk supply.

Another resolution adopted will ask the government to make Vancouver Island a Bangs disease free area.

A. J. Mason, Hilliers, was chosen president; W. H. Dunn, Cowichan Station, first vice-president; Fred McNeish, second vice-president, and John Neen, secretary-treasurer.

Other officers elected were field crop representative, A. E. Motherwell, Cobble Hill; advisory board members, A. McIntyre, Victoria; alternative, R. B. Sewell, Langford. Auditor, W. L. Dunn, Nanaimo.

Directors: J. King, Errington; Les McKinnon, Alberni; D. A. Beaton, Qualicum; Hamish Mutter, Duncan, and Mr. Motherwell.

Sawdust Critical

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Sawdust and wood situation here has become critical as a result of the prolonged forest closure.

Coal and fuel oil, however, are in good supply, but lack of box-cars for coal delivery may cause a shortage during the winter months.

A sawdust dealer, estimated that 10,000 of the 30,000 sawdust consumers will have to use some other fuel, likely coal.

Dealers were unanimous that fuel prices will not be increased this winter by "reputable" firms. They say that recent increases have stabilized the market, despite shortages.

Drastic Power Cut Delayed

TACOMA, Wash. (UP)—Issuing of a drastic power "brown-out" order for the Pacific Northwest may be postponed at least for a few days because of rising waters in the Kootenai River, J. H. Gumz, Pacific Northwest representative of the Defense Electric Power Administration, said today.

Next Monday had been set as a tentative date for the order.

Gumz added, however, that when the order was issued, its terms would be much broader than previously contemplated. He said the new plan would call for further cutbacks of power supplies of aluminum reduction plants and would apply a flat percentage curtailment to all other industrial firms. The curtailment would be based on their use of power between July 1, 1950, and June 30, 1951.

Gumz said rising water in the Kootenai River was due mainly to a cloudburst in British Columbia.

Lapointe Hits At Hospital Allegations

TORONTO (CP)—The Department of Veterans' Affairs Friday invited the Canadian Legion to prove charges of "sausage-mill" treatment of war veterans in D.V.A. hospitals.

The charges were leveled in St. Catharines Thursday night by Arthur Padbury, chairman of the Legion's provincial service bureau, at a meeting of Legion members from four Niagara district centres.

Veterans Minister Ernest Lapointe in Ottawa said: "We feel confident that they will find that nowhere is there a better standard of treatment for veterans than at Sunnybrook Hospital."

Mr. Padbury's allegations concerned chiefly the huge, 1,500-bed Sunnybrook Hospital in North York, on Toronto's northern outskirts and Westminster Hospital in London, Ont.

'Everyone Can Help His Neighbor'

Isaac McLeod, "Miss Community Chest for 1951," symbolizes the love, care and sympathy given the needy of the district by member services of the Community Chest. The glowing porch light Monday night, October 1, will be the signal of the Greater Victoria household that he is ready to lend a helping hand to his neighbor.

At the Roundabout

In next week's Sunday Times magazine section the first of the series of articles by Cecil Madden on the revolution in Vancouver Island industries will appear. He is increasing his number of books being written in the Islands' future. Big capital is coming from outside but smaller local money is playing its part in the big industrial change. Furniture making is the subject of his first article.

The best-known cook book in the world was written by a poet. Like most poets she found the problem of getting her work published almost insurmountable. Publishers to whom she applied doubted if sales of a poetry book would justify the expense. "Bring me a cookery book," said one "and we might come to terms." In return for the success of the cookery book she also printed her poems. The story is told on the women's page of the magazine section next week.

Also on the women's page next week comes some valuable information. End of summer by no means spells the end of gardening chores. There are many things to do to assure better flowers and vegetables for months to come. There is also a lot of preparation for next year's garden. Experts talk about this on page eight.

STAMPS Birth Of Stamp—U.S. Style

We in Victoria (perhaps after reading our tourist literature!) to be rather a quaint lot, but for sheer salivette it's pretty hard to beat the ceremonies which attended the issuing of the new 3-cent commemorative stamp on Sept. 4, to honor the diamond jubilee of the America Chemical Society.

According to "Stamp" magazine, the "stage was first set by elaborately decorating the main lobby of the N.Y. Post Office with exhibits assembled by the American Chemical Society and the American Museum of Atomic Energy. At 11.30 on the great day, the N.Y. Post Office Band lined up on the front steps and put on a concert that soon attracted a capacity crowd. While this was going on the invited guests met in the postmaster's office, where they presumably fortified themselves for the ceremonies that were to follow.

At noon they all came down in a body to start the proceedings. With P. M. Goldman, postmaster of N.Y., presiding, the N.Y.P.O. quartet started things going by singing the national anthem. An address of welcome was then given by the deputy mayor, who afterwards presented scrolls to the officials of the various chemical societies and congresses that were taking part. After suitable acknowledgements the P.O. quartet again burst into song, bringing the ceremonies to an end.

Bear in mind that this whole elaborate affair was simply to put on sale one 3-cent postage stamp, of repulsive appearance, which hadn't the slightest excuse for ever being issued in the first place!

We recently had the unexpected pleasure of a visit from our old friend Ross O'Shaughnessy, pioneer

On Cross-Examinations

You don't have to be a lawyer to enjoy E. W. Fordham's collection of cross-examinations. The object of "Notable Cross-Examinations" (published by Constable) is to let the cross-examination of one or more of the principal witnesses, in each case dealt with, speak for itself. The reader judges for himself who wins—the lawyer or the witness. Each case is introduced by the author, and the book also includes some notes on cross-examination found in the papers of a great lawyer, Sir Edward Clarke, K.C.

Whistler, the American painter, in 1878 brought an action for libel against John Ruskin, the author and art critic. Mr. Fordham has reproduced the cross-examination of Whistler by the attorney-general, Sir J. Holker. Whistler was asked how long it had taken him to paint one of the pictures Ruskin had labelled. Whistler replied, first, one day, then, two days.

"Oh, two days! The labor of two days, then is that for which you ask two hundred guineas?" "No; I ask it for the knowledge of a lifetime." (Applause.)

"You have been told that your pictures exhibit some eccentricities?" "Yes, often." (Laughter.) "You send them to the galleries to incite the admiration of the public?" "That would be such a vast absurdity on my part that I don't think I could." (Laughter.) Whistler was a match for anyone, including the attorney-general. S. Gilbert, the great dramatist, advanced stage than (7), that (3) was not necessarily tragic, and that by (5) he meant the period "when the callow eagles of youth fade away and the real man and the real woman emerge."

EYES ON BRITAIN Kicked Into The Kitchen

"I would like to serve dinner for one or two officers on Sunday," the stout voice of Mrs. P. shivered over the telephone. "Next Sunday," asked the girl. "Yes, said Mrs. P. "Next Sunday, I don't even have three officers." "Think you?"

"Bridget," said Mrs. P. to the maid, "you will show them into the kitchen and... They rolled up their sleeves. They had the same meat. They had a great time in the kitchen. In fact they preferred it. Both Bob and Gerald wrote home to their mothers to tell them about it.

Gerald's mother is Princess Royal, sister of King George VI. And Gerald, the sailor in training, actually Hon. Gerald Lascelles (nephew of King George VI), promptly wrote a letter to Mrs. P. thanking her for the superb turkey dinner—and signed his name.

Manager Ignoring Percentage Plays Hunches And Bad Baseball—Dresen

By CHARLEY DRESEN
One of the best managers in baseball is Les Binghamman.

Percentage baseball is basically simple to explain: it is merely a matter of knowing your personnel and something about the other players in the league.

A manager who ignores percentage is playing hunches—and the percentage is against him. Much has been said for managers who toss percentage into the ash can and attempt unorthodox tricks. If a stunt works, the manager is a genius. If it flops—look out!

I never play a hunch.

You have to know certain things about the other side, of course, but it is essentially more important to know every capability and fault of your own men.

Two many managers spend too much time worrying about how to cope with the opposition's manoeuvres. Hence, they are constantly on the defensive, even when their players are at bat or on the bases.

On the bases, for example, it is only common sense to avoid the straight steal unless you have a man on base who really knows how to steal.

The best time to employ the hit-and-run is with one out and a man on first. You can be doubled up, sure, but maybe you can get the runner in scoring position—perhaps chase him all the way to the plate—with a well-placed hit.

Here again, the basic question is: Have I got the right man at the plate for the hit-and-run? That's playing percentage.

Deep in this same vein, I don't like to play my infield in during the early innings, except to cut off a possible run at the plate. Pulling the infielders in turns a 200 hitter into a potential 400 chouter.

Sometimes, I would rather give up a run for the out—if I think we can get it back later.

The Dodgers, like most modern clubs, play for the big inning whenever possible. But when the opposing pitcher is really tough, we play for that one run, early. The psychology is to obtain a lead as quickly as possible. The other side, then, requires two runs to beat you.

Managing well is simply handling men, playing them where and when they can do the best job today or tonight.

There has been a lot of talk about overshifting against certain hitters. Critics of it point out that it is dangerous to leave a field unprotected. Advocates of the so-called Boudreau shift contend it is the best way to cut down the potential of a strong pull hitter. Personally, I'm all for it.

Take Ralph Kiner, for example. The big Pirate is positively brutal to left field. There are two things against which there is no defense—a home run and a base on balls. If Kiner, whom we know is going to put the ball deeply into left, hits it

TIME OUT!

"Don't mind Ed—he likes to imagine he's battling in the clean-up spot for the Yankees."

WALCOTT TAKES BAD LACING AT BOX OFFICE

What started out to be a gravy train for Jersey Joe Walcott is turning into a slow freight.

There is a possibility the remaining exhibition matches scheduled for the new heavyweight champion will come to a screeching halt or undergo drastic changes.

Walcott and his entourage took a financial lacing in Indianapolis when a total of 1,853 persons bought tickets to see the champ perform in a four-round exhibition against Jackie Burke of Brownsville, Pa.

Walcott had some $700 as his share. It's doubtful if this sum would even come close to paying expenses for the six-man Walcott group.

The Walcott camp took a loss in Columbus, O., the night before, when only 538 persons turned out for the exhibition.

Somewhat, accounts of the Columbus appearance failed to mention that Walcott went out and gathered 1,300 children and let them come in free to watch him box.

SAD NIGHT FOR PROMOTER Walcott and Burke domed headgear for the exhibition, which included a display of the champion's boxing ability, punching power and a little clowning.

It was a sad night for Promoter Norb Updike, who said: "I don't believe you could draw more than 1,500 persons to a fight in Indianapolis if you had every champion in the world on the same card."

It takes only a few minutes with Walcott to realize that the promise he made after winning the title was by no means a gag. He said he would devote the rest of his life to the youth of America.

"And veterans' hospitals nearby?" Inquired Joe after a visit with the Governor of Indiana. It was a matter of minutes until a sheriff's car, siren screaming, was taking the group to Billings Hospital.

Walcott made a short talk in the auditorium and the procession was off to the Prisoner House. As Joe passed through the doorway, he piped, "That's Joe, Louie!" Walcott gave him a playful punch on the chin.

All along the way Manager Felix Becchiele, an easy-to-get-along-with fellow, gave away large badges which carried a picture of Jersey Joe.

ATTENTIVE AUDIENCE Walcott insisted upon going somewhere else. The county jail was picked. Prisoners were assembled in the mess hall and Joe spoke. He gave sound advice to men who don't like to be advised and they listened so attentively that the only sounds were the voice and a dripping water faucet.

With this type of operation the boxing sport will prosper more than Walcott, but he undoubtedly will join the ranks of all-time popular champions.

As Jersey Joe Walcott said over the public address system following his exhibition with Jackie Burke: "Whether some people like it, an old man—I'm still heavyweight champion of the world."

Judges' Uncomfortable Wigs Are Now Museum Pieces

Legislators abandoned the practise, one of B.C. judges heaved to the Washingtonian line and refused to acknowledge the change.

There are two stories current regarding the abolition of wigs in our courts.

According to one version, Attorney-General Joe Martin, stormy petrel of B.C. politics at the beginning of the century, found his wig irksome one hot day in court.

"May I have your lordship's leave to lay aside my wig?" inquired the attorney-general.

"No," said his lordship firmly.

"We'll see about that," muttered Joseph, and as the Legislature was in session at the time, hastened back to his office and promptly drafted an amendment to the Supreme Court Act abolishing the use of wigs.

It's a good story in the Joe Martin tradition.

IRISH BACHELOR DEAN OF STAMP COLLECTORS

By TOM MERRIMAN

Oldest philatelist on the continent, Ross O'Shaughnessy, on one of his periodical visits to Victoria, this week, paid a growing tribute to R. Nairne, whose articles on stamps appear in the Victoria Sunday Times.

"I have the Victoria Sunday Times sent to me in San Francisco every week to read Nairne's article," he said. "It is so authentic; it is absolutely accurate. It is equal if not better than any article on stamps published in the United States," O'Shaughnessy said.

The San Francisco philatelist speaks with authority. Fifty-six years a stamp collector, he has made a fortune out of his profession and has been custodian of some of the world's greatest collections. He is a member of 10 different philatelist societies throughout the world and a charter member of most of them.

Irish-born, O'Shaughnessy is a bachelor and in spite of having lived most of his life in U.S.A., retains the singing lilt of tongue of a son of Erin.

To him stamps have taken the place of children. He looks upon them as a father looks upon his sons and talks even more about them. Overweight and a trifle wheezy, he had his apartment and stamp headquarters in the Nob Hill district in San Francisco for years; a collector who hated to be distracted from his beloved stamps.

SOLVED HOUSING PROBLEM
Almost tearfully he tells how after all the years he had spent there, with an address as well known to philatelists throughout the world as Baker St. is to Sherlock Holmes fans, he ran into housing problem trouble.

Not glomtingly but sadly, he told

NATURE TALKS

Beauty Lost To Speeders

A peaceful scene at Sooke

Now that the road to Sooke has been brought in width and surface to a condition for luxuriant motoring there is a real danger that some of its attraction may be lost.

The landscape flits by so quickly that the eye has scarcely rested on one interesting feature before another succeeds it and then another, and so on. The open car or one whose hood could be lowered is now a thing of the past; it had the advantage of allowing an uninterrupted view all round.

Of course for genuine enjoyment of scenery there is nothing like travel on foot, but pedestrianism is well high as extinct as the dodo for the fossil Desmostylus of Muir Creek. I am always glad that I spent many hours over a period of years tramping this road and exploring its hillsides and cliffs. For long-distance views of course the car has its advantages. Take for example that across the inner basin of Sooke towards East Sooke whether in fine clear weather under a bright summer sky or when the white fog comes rolling in from the Straits, half hiding the quiet water and half shadowing the woods; or as I saw it recently when the forest was in full autumnal tints and the dense foliage and the hills and mountains with flaming light.

TINGED WITH ROMANCE

Beyond Sooke the view of the sea is scarcely affected by our speed. The long vista of the Olympics as they stretch away to the west and the low hills of the Coast Range loom in the far distance. With a little imagination one can picture Quadra and Vancouver in their small vessels following the strange new coast lines. The air is more than tinged with romance both on sea and land. After you have passed through the growing village of Sooke and the road turns westward you pass the familiar Glintz farm. Here it was that Captain Grant and the Muir family founded the Sooke settlement in the middle of last century.

Natural history here joins hands with that of these pioneers, for tradition has it, and rightly, that it was Capt. Grant who first sowed here the seed of the broom. History may be forgotten but the yellow broom lives on, bordering the roads, creeping up the hillsides, and encroaching on the cultivated lands. The proverb that says you can have too much of a good thing is no doubt true of the broom and yet its golden color in flower would be sorely missed on many a country walk and drive. Its prickly cousin the gorse is by no means so common but there has long been a little plantation of it by the railway at Luxton, where it perfumes the air with this nutty scent.

The road, now becomes the Jordan River one since Sooke is left behind, first touches the sea at the foot of a long slope where a small creek comes down a rocky hillside. A little bay here is a favorite place for picnics though of late years rather spoiled by neighboring logging operations.

Little chance of getting it by ruthless, hostile guards if it still had value. Stamps, however, were more easily hidden and less attractive to the untutored even if they did find them.

Many refugees turned everything they possessed into stamps, the value of which is standard on the London market, and thus had funds to establish themselves in the countries where they found sanctuary.

It is, however, the love of the collector that spurs his interest in stamps. Falling health makes a little harder each year his trips of the Northwest, during which he calls on other philatelists eager to confer with him and learn from his vast store of knowledge about stamps, but he will never quit and his services as a counsellor on philatelic matters will be sought as long as he lives.

Dynamic Little Victoria Woman Launched Organization That Spread Over World

Outstanding Figures In Victoria Women's Organization

MRS. ALFRED WATT

Author of "Pioneer Women of Vancouver Island."

I should like to be able to write from personal experience something about all of the women's organizations, and their inception in British Columbia, the Local Council of Women, the Y.W.C.A., the I.O.D.E., the Women's Institute, the Business and Professional Women's Club.

In the formation of the latter I did have a small part in the organization of the Kumtux Club, which grew eventually into the very large association known under the name today. The Kumtux Club was started about 1919 and most of the original members are still living and can remember well with what enthusiasm we set out on our enterprise of working together for the good of all business women and the community as a whole.

Lottie Bowron was our first president. The one among the original members who stands out most brilliantly as most successful in accomplishment is, of course, Mrs. Nancy Hodges.

Most prominent among the older clubs is the Women's Institute. It had its beginning about 1912, but the first quarterly bears the date 1915. I regret that I have never belonged to the organization, though I have lived in Saanich off and on, for many years. But I do know Mrs. Alfred Watt and I believe that she was responsible for the formation of the Institute in British Columbia in the first place, and as I write I can picture her well.

DYNAMIC FOUNDER

Small women, and men, too, seem to make up in courage, initiative and persistence what they lack in stature. Mrs. Watt was a small woman in stature, but brimming full of dynamic vitality. She and her husband lived at William Head where he was the head doctor in charge of the Quarantine Station, a tall, gentle, kindly man. Doubtless it was her association with the women in general of country women, that aroused her interest and her desire to be of help in solving them, and although it does not state so in the quarterly, one and all are agreed that Mrs. Watt was the founder of the Women's Institute in British Columbia.

As most people know the chief objective of this organization was the amelioration of conditions affecting women in rural districts. A chair has been established for Home Economics at the University and a scholarship fund for rural girls. The Institute is responsible for the building of the Solarium on the Women's Institute Island and for the

and the general elevation of the standard of living. In order to accomplish this, branches were formed in every community, no matter how small, and because it seems only fair, I shall give the names of the first presidents: Mrs. Duncan in Comox, Mrs. Hayward in Cowichan, Mrs. McLaughlin in Garden City, Mrs. Atkins in Gordon Head, Mrs. Tolmie in Lake Hill, Mrs. Dewar in Langford, Mrs. Nield in Metichon, Mrs. Curdie in Oyster District, Mrs. Dashiell in Parksville, Mrs. Carmichael in Royal Oak, Mrs. Taggart in Shawigan, Mrs. Murray in Sooke and Otter Point. In South Saanich Mrs. Lawrie, and in West Saanich Mrs. Parsell.

BECAME WORLD-WIDE

Little did these women, guiding their small assemblies, realize what a world-wide movement they were starting. A movement in which hundreds of thousands all over the world are taking part today. I am sure that the presidents of each of those early branches could tell a most interesting story of their beginning, with some pen portraits of the members, old and young, who helped to start a crusade so far-reaching.

In the early days there were only two divisions of the Institute, the Mainland and Vancouver Island. Later these were divided and subdivided, until by 1930, they numbered 12.

Each district has a president, a secretary and five directors who arrange for the meetings held each year at some central point. The work is carried on under the direction of the provincial board, the superintendent and the provincial conveners.

The department of agriculture keeps up the office of superintendent, paying her salary and expenses. It also gives a grant of $10 to each institute in good standing. The provincial divisions are agriculture, citizenship, home economics, handicrafts, industries and social welfare. The activities of the above include sponsoring fall fairs and flower shows, garden contests and home beautification; the welcoming of newcomers to Canada, the supervision of schools, recreational projects, improved playgrounds, community halls.

A chair has been established for Home Economics at the University and a scholarship fund for rural girls. The Institute is responsible for the building of the Solarium on the Women's Institute Island and for the Crippled Children's hospital in Vancouver. If they had done nothing else they have justified their existence in these two noble undertakings.

MISS LOTTIE BOWRON

It is not possible to summarize the splendid work done by the Institutes during the war years. But would take far too much space. It is reading over what has been accomplished it seems to me that every woman living in the rural communities should join in this work and see that it keeps alive and increasing in its influence. So much that is destructive is going on around us that we need, more than anything else, the organizations which will counteract this in building up not only in a material way, but in the constant striving for the higher ethical ideals.

But to turn to Mrs. Watt and what she accomplished largely on her own initiative, not only in Canada but far afield.

She went to England when Mr. Turner was Agent-General. Many will remember the Turners. He and his wife belonged to the serene leisurely period of Victoria, when nobody was in much of a hurry, but intent chiefly on passing the time pleasantly, or so it seems to me looking back on those glad, young days.

DIGNIFIED, COURTELY

Mr. Turner was a dignified, courteous gentleman, a very pleasant personality. They had a pleasant home on the way to the Gorge. I think it has been demolished since, but when it was considered to be in a fashionable district. They gave delightful parties, especially garden parties, a very large one just before they left for England. A warm, sunny day, the flowers and bushes were in their best, and the gay thrushes of the Gorge were blending with them in colorful harmony. Made a picture that stands out in my gallery of memories.

With Mr. Turner's co-operation, Mrs. Watt prepared a series of lectures and a prospectus.

AROUSING INTEREST

At once people became interested, and finally the Women's Institute movement was brought to the attention of the Agricultural Organization Society. At this meeting Earl Grey was in the chair, and cordially endorsed all that Mrs. Watt had to say. She also had the co-operation of Mr. Nugent, who was the general secretary for the above association. It was finally decided that the best place to start its amalgamation with the Women's Institute should be made in Wales in the village of Llan Fairwell. From that beginning other institutes were formed in Wales, and later there came into being the first Institute in England, followed by many more all over the British Isles.

Encouraged by her success, Mrs. Watt did not stop after the completed organization of the National Federation of England and Wales. We see this indomitable little woman in Paris next, speaking at an international congress, where she advanced the idea of an international countrywomen's group. It was not until some years later, however, when, at a meeting of women of many nationalities, she was able to make progress in uniting the women of all countries.

Three years later at Stockholm, Sweden, the Associated Countrywomen of the World was formed with Mrs. Alfred Watt as its first president. To show how all embracing that was, a list of the countries which joined will be illuminating. Besides Canada, the U.S. and Great Britain there were Norway, Sweden, Latvia, Lithuania, Estonia, Denmark, Holland, Belgium, France, Switzerland, Germany, Czechoslovakia, Finland, India, Ceylon, Burma, Kenya, New Zealand, Australia, Nyasaland, Palestine, Portugal, South Africa, Southern Rhodesia and Yugoslavia.

I don't think that very many people realize the magnitude of the task Mrs. Watt set for herself, or how magnificently she succeeded. It seems to me she should have an accolade more distinguished than she has. Without any doubt this woman, plain of feature, small of stature, stands out more prominently than any other woman in Canada for her success in the humanitarian work she set out to do and so well accomplished.

The following incident is a nice little illustration of Mrs. Watt's unquestioning confidence in the reasonableness of anything she suggested. It was in a Chinese fruit vendor's shop in which there were barely room to move around, where she met a friend whom she had not seen since her last trip to England. Her pleasure at the meeting was unbounded. Turning to the Chinese salesman she explained in that manner of hers which never admitted opposition.

"My good man, this lady and I have not met in years, and we must have a little chat. Bring chairs, please, for we shall be here some time," and went on to talk in comfort.

FOR APARTMENT HOUSE 'GARDENERS'

In this Northwest, there are many people who live in apartments, dreaming of the day when they will be able to move out into their own place in the country. Others, with the same ideas, are now living in small homes or duplexes. In many cases no one is at home during the day, and, although the desire to grow some indoor plants at home or in the office is strong, success rarely attends, even the most painstaking efforts.

REST PERIODS
There are very few plants which go through life without some sort of an annual rest period. Many of the indoor flowering plants such as gladiolus, cyclamen, Christmas cactus and hollyhocks, would fail completely in time if they did not have this slow-down or rest period. This corresponds to the dry or drought period which they had when they were in the ground.

CONDITIONS NOT CONGENIAL
If you have recently walked through a greenhouse, you will remember that not only the plants there were all fine and healthy, but also the air was very moist. At this season, in houses or apartments, many plants begin to show signs of sickness. Leaves turn discolored, yellow, or lose their lovely natural green color. Others seem to shrivel or get thin, while some even drop off altogether.

When any plant looks sickly or appears to have ceased to grow, there is always a reason and the first appearance of the plant is the first noticeable sign. Do not wait until the trouble gets worse, hoping that some "happening" will put it right. Examine the plant, remembering that human beings and plants are not able to exist satisfactorily in the same "indoors" or under similar conditions.

peratures are kept high and humidity low to suit our comfort, a copy of dirt is being created in which a few, if any, plants are capable of giving satisfaction.

Move your house plants around to find the most suitable spot where the correct air circulation and temperature is maintained. This varies from room to room.

KEEP LEAVES CLEAN
The leaves are the lungs of the plant. They should be kept clean by wiping with a damp cloth or sponge at least once a week. I can remember, years ago, when grandmother used to dip a little sponge in milk light causes the yellowed foliage and sick-looking plants. Control by carefully dusting underneath the leaves with fine sulphur beginning very early in spring. Keep the new growth produced in autumn. Remove and burn all dead leaves and plants as soon as they finish blooming.

QUIZZING THE GARDENER
Q.—Is close cutting of a Kentucky blue grass lawn harmful?—E. K. A.—A lawn may be cut out too close. Too-close cutting forces the plant to carry on the life processes and any adverse conditions such as drought, disease or insects can easily wipe out what grass one and one-half to two inches high.

Q.—The foliage of our lily of the valley is browning. A friend says to pull it off and burn it. What is your suggestion?—N. T. A.—When lily of the valley foliage turns brown it has no doubt died for its continued existence. It is a good idea to remove it before it interferes with the new growth in autumn. Spread fertilizer on the ground about the plants, then cultivate and water it in.

Q.—The lower leaves of our hollyhocks are completely yellow and the blooms are not up to par. What is wrong?—L. O. A.—Hollyhocks are subject to a disease called "rust." Severe infection causes the yellowed foliage and sick-looking plants. Control by carefully dusting underneath the leaves with fine sulphur beginning very early in spring. Keep the new growth produced in autumn. Remove and burn all dead leaves and plants as soon as they finish blooming.

Q.—What is meant by the numbers which are printed on fertilizer bags?—Those on mine read 1-12-1.

A.—Complete fertilizers are made up of three essential plant elements, nitrogen, phosphorus and potash. The first number stands for the proportion of nitrogen, the second for that of phosphorus, and the third for that of potash.

Q.—What soil mixture is best for rooting Japanese yew cuttings?—V. N. A.—A mixture of equal parts of coarse sand and peat moss. Sand should be treated with a hormone preparation before insertion in the sand. The cuttings should be watered immediately after and the rooting medium should never be allowed to become dry nor permitted to become waterlogged.

Proper Feeding Vital To Success With Turkeys

By JACK GAVER

The list of prominent screen players who will be competing with the stage this season is beginning to get impressive.

The latest to trek back from Hollywood is Charles Winninger, the veteran comedian who hasn't been around New York since 1934 when he was in the musical "Revenge With Music." Before that, of course, he had done many prominent stage roles in a long career, being best remembered as the original Captain Andy of "Show Boat."

Winninger is returning for the part of the old music teacher in "Music in the Air," the Jerome

Symphony Brings Official Opening Of Concert Season

By AUDREY ST. D. JOHNSON

One of the most important events of the entire musical season takes place this coming week, when Hans Gruber takes the conductor's stand for the first of the 11th series of Victoria Symphony concerts.

The occasion has become one to which all music lovers look forward as being the official opening of the concert season. For somehow, when a city possesses a firmly established symphony orchestra, that orchestra becomes the central vitalizing force—the actual heartbeat of the musical life.

Victoria is one of a scant dozen or so Canadian cities that can boast a symphony orchestra. In that respect she stands alongside Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, London, Winnipeg, Calgary and Vancouver, as one of the cultural centres of the Dominion.

We can be proud too, of the fact that each of the 10 past seasons has shown an expansion; a significant change of one sort or another. Not always perhaps with results immediately recognizable to our critical minds. Nevertheless, the organization has not stood still for at only one point in its history and very briefly.

EIGHT SUBSCRIPTION CONCERTS

The season now about to open promises to continue the record of growth. Mr. Gruber's carefully planned eight subscription concerts have revealed that he will continue to promote the finest talent inherent in the orchestra itself.

We can think of nothing more satisfying than a performance of Beethoven's stirring Triple Concerto, played by the first desk violinist and cellist, Clifford Evans and Mary Hammond, with Charles Palmer, pianist.

It is stimulating too, to notice on the line-up of guest artists, that three out of four are Canadians. It looks as though Gruber and the Victoria Symphony are going to give Victoria a much desired opportunity of hearing this country's top-flight artists through this and seasons to come.

Reviewing The Records

POPULAR MUSIC

Victor has turned out six more "Jazz Immortal" albums (on either 45 or 33 1/2 r.p.m.) taken from its files. The new albums feature Muggsy Spanier, Fats Waller, Louis Armstrong, Bunny Berigan, Duke Ellington and Benny Goodman.

Perhaps the best of the albums, if it is necessary to pick a best, is that featuring Benny Goodman. The records, demonstrating Goodman's great "swing" style, were recorded from 1935 to 1938 and, of course, show case his outstanding clarinet playing. One of the best numbers is "Sing, Sing, Sing," which has some fine drum playing by Gene Krupa. Other numbers are "King Porter Stomp," "It Had to Be You," "Roll 'Em," and "One o'Clock Jump."

The late Bunny Berigan, whose trumpet playing was some of the best of all times, is featured in eight discs recorded after he formed his own band here are his "I Can't Get Started" and "High Society."

Although Duke Ellington rose to fame and fortune long before he began recording for RCA Victor, he re-waxed some of his better numbers with new arrangements for Victor in 1945. It is these discs which are included in the album. All the numbers are his own compositions: "Caravan," "Solitude," "Sentimental Mood," "Black and Tan Fantasy," "Prelude to a Kiss," "It Don't Mean a Thing," "Sophisticated Lady," and "I Let a Song Go Out of My Heart."

CONCERT MUSIC

ing to note that in this interpretation, she resolves its essence of loneliness into resignation. In the early and out-moded (mechanically) records made when she was younger, loneliness resolved into an exultant conquest of loneliness.

Most interesting of current vocal collection records is one containing two song cycles by the contemporary Finnish composer, J. S. Paavilainen, sung by the Finnish soprano, Eino Kaila.

(WCFM; 12-inch L.P.) Kilpinen's songs have both heart and mood. They get at you. The record contains also lesser-known songs of Grieg and Sibelius.

LOGGING CAMP JOBS

Truck Driver's Cab As Complicated As Transport Aircraft

Over 80 tons in truck and load of logs like this.

(This is the second of a series of articles written for the Victoria Daily Times Sunday magazine by staff writer Don Ing.)

By DON INGHAM

Key men in almost any logging operation today are the truck drivers who move from 20 to 150 tons of logs per load, four and five loads a day, month in and month out, from the logging operation to the booming ground.

Railroads used to hold full sway in log transport, but in recent years, with grades getting steeper and timber more inaccessible, the flexible truck has gained more and more importance.

And with its rise has come a new trade in the woods—that of truck driver.

Moving from the wheel of a passenger car to the cab of a large, modern logging truck is comparable to stepping off a child's tricycle to the passenger car.

As far as drivers are concerned, a whole new set of reflexes must be learned. To start with, the trucks have from eight to 15 speeds forward—depending on combinations of main and auxiliary transmissions—and all must be used.

Steering gear also is completely foreign. Whereas a flick of a finger will take a car around a curve, the turn of the logger's big hand is little important, but the tachometer which registers engine revolutions per minute, requires constant attention to guard against damage to the motor coming downhill in gear.

WATCH THOSE GAUGES!

There are also two independent braking systems, and woe betide the driver who doesn't keep his eye glued on his air pressure gauges. Let the pressure drop below 50 pounds by too free use of air and the driver is liable to find himself in trouble at the very start of his load. When he starts with his hand, he will check the air and water lines to his trailer, and may possibly apply all brakes to see that they are functioning. Then, starting off in gear, he'll ease into the first hill.

First thing is to turn on water to his trailer brakes—fed under pressure to the drums to keep them cool—then apply a few pounds of air. If his speed picks up he will ease a little more air to his trailer brakes, then turn water on to his truck brakes and apply them.

He will soon have his truck under control. Just before he releases his brakes at the bottom of the hill he turns off the water in order that the drums will dry, then likely will have to juggle his truck down through a few gears to climb a hill.

MUST KNOW EXACT GEAR

Incidentally, gears cannot be changed down with a smash and a crash when a truck is dragging up a hill at about three miles per hour. Before the engine has slowed down to the point where gears can be changed the truck is probably rolling backward, and the average human being just hasn't got enough hands and feet to work a clutch, footbrake, two transmission levers, two handbrake controls, a throttle pedal and a steering wheel, and still get everything done.

How do the drivers do it? They know what gear to go to in the first place. How do they know which gear will take them over a given hill? They have to know or they aren't truck drivers. It's a tough job. The cab is as complicated as the "office" of a four-motored transport aircraft, just as noisy, and a lot less comfortable. It's just as dangerous, too, but that's another story.

MERRIMAN TALKS

FRED USHER AS HAPPY AS HE LOOKS ON STAGE

If 34-year-old Fred Usher, boss of the music-loving Home Waters, ever stopped plunking his guitar and singing his Irish and cowboy songs the bottom would be out of the world for him.

He is just as happy doing it as he looks in the accompanying picture. To my surprise I learned during a talk with Usher yesterday there's very little money in the business. Like a lot of other people I thought Fred and his Home Waters, who are in such great demand in Victoria, were reaping a small fortune from their talents.

With expenses for costumes, transportation, music and other incidentals they may finish the year a few dollars ahead of the game, but are just as likely to finish in the red. Fred and his long-time partner, Bob McGill, both have jobs on C.N.V.I. staff. Their singing is purely a sideline. All the other members of the Home Waters, in spite of the professional competence of the show they put over, work at other jobs.

THEY LOVE IT

"But we all love music and singing and seeing the crowd enjoy our show. It's the thrill of it that keeps us going although, of course, there is always the vision of being chosen for a high spot in the big time."

And more than once they have nearly come to grips with that elusive fame.

Recently they had an opportunity for a six-month tour of England at an attractive figure. Fred figured it out, expenses, income tax, dropping his well-established salesmanship connections, and said no.

They have had the recognition of spots on C.B.C., which brought them more offers to do shows in the United States. Some of these they may take.

"There's one job we would particularly like," said Fred, "and that is to play square dances at Government House for the Prince and Princess."

He's quite serious about it. "The Princess says she likes folk dances," he commented. "Why not some real western music with the Home Waters playing it?"

IT'S IN THE FAMILY

Usher, who was born in Saskatchewan, has been singing since he was four years old and comes by his talent naturally. His mother still has a good soprano voice. His grandfather sang spiritedly in the choir of his 80th birthday party.

Usher's first serious singing was with the Anglican Church choir at Regina where he was soloist. It was around this time that he struck up a boyhood friendship with Bob McGill, which has lasted ever since.

Both were taking part in an opera-etta. Walking a mile and a half of country road to practise they would sing as they walked. Bob at that time was winning a reputation as a boy soprano at music festivals.

They found their voices blended well over the range of church music, popular tunes and novelty tunes. A ukelele that Usher got as a birthday gift, and on which he soon learned to strum, the accompaniment, was the forerunner of his guitar, today. Next step was an early morning program on a Regina radio station.

They were billed as the "Alarm Clocks."

Next move of the pair was to join the Freshmen's Quartette of the Central Collegiate in Regina where four teenagers were building up a reputation. The baritone got a steady job in radio, the tenor went to college, doing solo work.

FRED USHER

Inseparable chums, Fred and Bob McGill came back from a tour of the United States and Canada in the early 1930s. Both had serious life in the cities and gave many shows for the troops in Victoria. In Prince Rupert, where there were 5,000 men, 11 beer parlors and only one picture show, Usher was asked to organize shows for the troops. He wrote and produced a comedy "Nervous in the Service," which proved a great hit and from then on he was a busy man.

By the time the war was over and McGill came back Fred had organized another little group and Bob stepped right into it before he had doffed his uniform or got his discharge.

VICTORIA SONG WRITERS

Usher is the part they have been able to play with the promising local mother and daughter song-writing team of Mrs. Ethel Moore and Mrs. B. Rogers, who have had their songs "Blue Jeans and Cowboy Boots" and "Echo Trails" accepted in the east and for whom he predicts further successes.

On commercial records going to 150 stations Bob McGill sings "Happy Trails" and Usher sings "Whispering Waves." The songs of Mrs. Moore and Mrs. Rogers have spurred scores of other Victorians who seek to write songs with requests for the Home Waters to put them on their programs.

A LITTLE FRED UP

Usher also gets a thrill out of presenting the amateur shows in Beacon Hill Park and encouraging youngsters who seek to make a name in the entertainment field, but he's a little discouraged with the city's lack of financial support. Prizes are necessary to encourage the amateurs.

The city leaves it up to Fred to burn them instead of making a donation to cover them.

He's a trifle fed up about that?

Minny, Fred's wife, says that's true. Minny, for her part, and the Victoria Girls' Drill Team. They have three children—eldest eight, youngest seven months.

UNDERSTANDING WIFE

"You have to have an understanding wife to be in the entertainment business," he said. "Mrs. Usher is a great help in advice, making costumes and giving us ideas. The practising and nights out at shows would drive most wives crazy."

Incidentally, in his school and army days Fred had a great athletic record which embraces track, broad jump, high jump, junior hockey, Canadian football, soccer and softball.

Royal Couple Will See Grown-Up Canada In Tour Covering 10,000 Miles

Parliament Buildings at Victoria, B.C.'s capital.

Quebec City.

Montreal and Toronto, the naval shipbuilding yards on the St. Lawrence River and on the Pacific Coast, and possibly the atomic energy plant at Chalk River, north of Ottawa.

And, like the King and Queen in 1939, they'll tour veterans' hospitals. These, too, have greatly expanded in 12 years, to take care of the injured veterans of World War Two and the Korean war.

But, on their coast-to-coast and back tour, they'll see what the average tourist wants to see, besides what the Canadian government wants them to see. From Niagara Falls to the Canadian Rockies, Elizabeth and Philip will do some first-class, western hemisphere rubber-necking.

They'll travel by boat, train, air and automobile. Most of this will be on regular commercial carriers. They'll sample both transcontinental rail routes. When they go by air they will use government transportation—a Royal Canadian Air Force DC-4, and on the Pacific and Atlantic coast sections of the trip they'll be on Royal Canadian Navy cruisers.

From their sightseeing standpoint, highspots of the trip will probably come in the Canadian Rockies, on the Pacific coast and in the Maritime provinces of the Atlantic seaboard.

Their first view of the Rocky Mountains will come at Calgary. For the next 36 hours, as they travel west, they will hardly ever be out of sight of one of the innumerable snowcapped peaks.

There is a two-day holiday scheduled after they reach the Pacific. And at this time Victoria and other cities of Vancouver Island are anxiously awaiting more details of the tour in their eagerness for the Royal couple to see the garden city of Canada, the beauty of the island scenery and some of the old world atmosphere it retains.

Typical tourist attractions await them at Canada's largest city, Montreal. They'll see the magnificent view of Canada's biggest harbor from historic Mount Royal. And they'll see the wide St. Lawrence River over 1,000 miles inland from the Atlantic, where ocean going vessels dock.

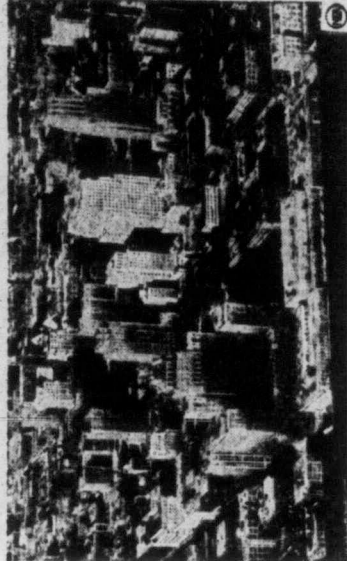

There is another two-day holiday scheduled for them at this point, which they will probably spend at a resort near Montreal. Then they will make a two-day visit to Washington, the only time they will be on U.S. soil. The skyline of the U.S. will be visible at other points, however, notably the skyline of Detroit from Windsor, Ontario.

The last stops of the trip will be the beautiful Maritime Provinces. They'll see the small fishing villages of Nova Scotia, the smallest Canadian province, Prince Edward Island, and the oldest British overseas territory at St. John's, Newfoundland, discovered in 1497 and continuously British ever since.

The only part of the Dominion they'll miss will be the far north, the land of Eskimos and Indians. But that area will be well into winter when they arrive. And Canada would rather show off the glories of a Canadian autumn.

Majestic Rockies loom over the resort town of Banff, a stop on the Royal tour and one of the scenic high points.

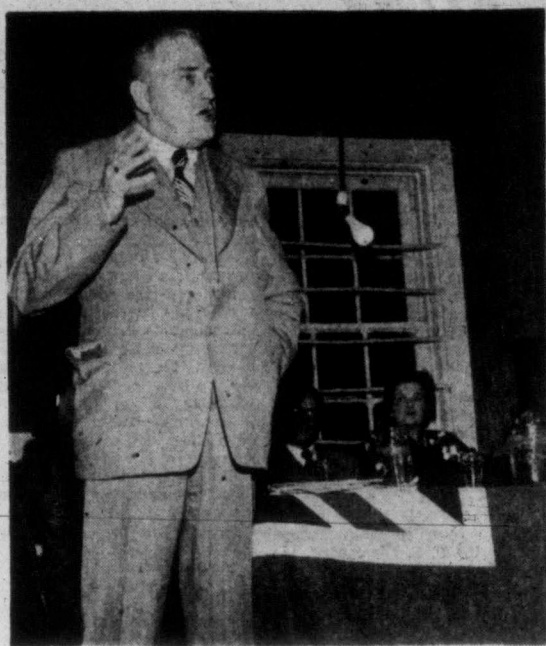

In Toronto, the Royal Couple will see the biggest collection of tall office buildings under the British flag.

Esquimalt Candidates Have Last Say Before Crucial Vote Monday

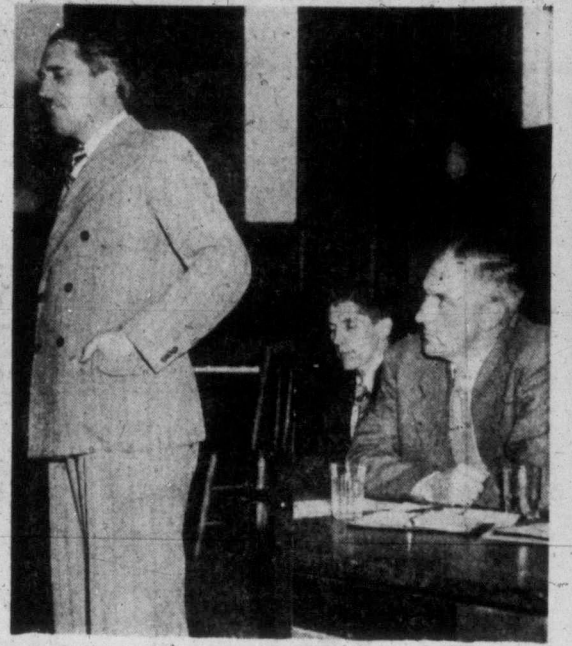

Premier Byron Johnson and Candidate Percy George. "... 575,000 accounts paid. Nobody wants hospital insurance repealed. Of course not."

Finance Minister Herbert Anscomb for George. "... Socialist government would see the flow of money into B.C. stopped and progress become static."

Candidate Alfred Wurtele and supporter W. A. C. Bennett. "... I will not indulge in mud-slinging. Elect an Esquimalt man for an Esquimalt job."

Opposition Leader Harold Winch, candidate Frank Mitchell and Frank Snowsall. "... just political immorality to try to hold Coalition together."

on the TIMES

By ART STOTT

When we were young together on the City Hall beat, George used to blow a gasket every time he read the welfare reports. He'd look at the cost sheets and think of the money the taxpayers had to provide to finance one particular family that was never self-supporting.

"That guy," George used to say, speaking of the head of the family, "is just no good. Whenever he has the price of a bottle of 'goof' he's buying one. And we have to support his wife and kids." George used to give a picturesque description of the husband and father. After he'd blown off the adjectives, he'd approach the issue from a more restrained angle. "He's selfish, too. That guy is taking money out of my pocket every time he gets drunk. And here am I, practically dying of dry-rot because I can't afford to tie one on because my money's going to help his family so he can stay corned."

WHEN the Community Chest campaigns started, George would think of the family again. He'd work himself into a state near apoplexy and ask "I should chip in five dollars so old Bottlenose can get his booze?" You'd ask him if he had chipped in five and he'd give you a quiet answer. "Yeah. Somebody's got to look after that guy's wife and kids. And you can bet old Bottlenose isn't going to." Then he'd sound a little belligerent, justifying his actions. "Sure I chipped in. It isn't the kids' fault."

Each year George would fight the issue out with himself. He'd start by blazoring away at Bottlenose and feeling about as indignant as a man can be. Then he'd work around to a recognition that any community is going to have its share of Bottlenoses and that the community somehow has to help the victims of the Bottlenose thirst.

SOMEHOW THAT used to furnish all the argument George needed to make his donation to the Chest. It was honest enough, too, honest as the indignation he felt against the irresponsible head of the underprivileged family.

He could have gone on to consideration of other agencies that are helped, but that wasn't necessary. He didn't need to be told the story of the blind. He was familiar with it, as a reporter. He didn't have to be persuaded that the agencies which help to keep bodies and minds healthy were entitled to support. That appealed to him. He saw it as one of the most constructive elements in social service work. You were preaching to the converted when you discussed the Boy Scouts, the Y.M.C.A. and like organizations to him.

HE KNEW the value of the V.O.N. in helping the ailing, of the John Howard Society in assisting the man newly out of prison, the family and children's services which reached beyond the Bottlenose household, and the groups that were helping the old folks.

He didn't have any opinion on the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society because it wasn't included in the list in those days, but he'd have supported it, too.

George just had to wrestle with Bottlenose and when he'd won that bout he was ready to go along with the other groups that stretch out a helping hand. There are a lot of people like him. They have one or two objections to giving assistance where the need for it is caused by the selfishness of others. But then the objects aren't selfish enough to refuse a hand to those who require help.

17,000 From Far Afield To See Royal Couple On Victoria Tour

By AILEEN CAMPBELL

It will be a children's parade without an adult in sight... or almost. Parents, aunts, uncles and friends of the family will not be able to horn in when 17,000 school children from Victoria, adjacent areas and Salt Spring Island gather at the curbside on the afternoon of Oct. 22 to see Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh.

"The public will be barred from the four concentration areas," said J. F. K. English, senior municipal inspector of schools today, as he announced plans.

FOUR VIEW POINTS Children from public and private schools in Victoria, Saanich, Langford, Colwood, Salt Spring and other neighboring areas will be stationed five deep at four points.

First group will be near the junction of Cadboro Bay and Cranmore Roads; second, Yates near Central Junior High; third, near Cloverdale and Quadra; fourth, on Lampson near Lampson Street School.

"We would like every child to carry a small flag of two or three inches, to add color to the scene," said Mr. English.

KEEP AREAS CLEAR "We will see that the public are not in these areas, so that every child of the 17,000 will see the Royal couple."

Ernest Costin, Gordon Hartley, Ernest Livesey and William Reid will be the teachers in charge of each group. They will work under George Grant. All will be under the general supervision of Mr. English.

Flags will mark the start and finish of the school area tour. This part of the Royal tour will be strictly "a school show."

If mother wants to take the youngsters to see the Royal pair, she will have to take her chances in the downtown throngs. The school show is for "children only," Mr. English stressed.

Fund To Help Stricken Man Over The Top

Multiple-sclerosis victim Owen McLeod, Langford war veteran, will be taking a trip to Tacoma for treatment.

The Owen McLeod Fund, sponsored by the Langford Community Club and supported by similar organizations throughout Langford, Colwood and Happy Valley, went "over the top" with a bang Friday night at a dance in the Colwood Hall.

Biggest crowd since wartime packed the hall, with nearly 400 people enjoying modern and old-time dancing.

Objective of the drive was $1,000, the minimum required to send Mr. McLeod to the Tacoma clinic.

Canvassing by volunteers and dance proceeds raised $883, the Victoria Lions Club added $190, with another $100 offered as a standby to assure reaching the objective, the Salvation Army contributed $50, and the Canadian Legion Poppy Fund provided a further $100.

Total figures, including pledges not yet turned in, will be available at next Thursday's meeting of the Langford Community Club.

$3,000 BAIL SET

Bail was set at $3,000 for Gerald Lessard, 24, who was committed to trial by higher court in provincial court Friday on a charge of manslaughter arising out of an accident on the Island Highway last July.

V.C. Winners Here For Ceremony

Col. Cy Peck (left) and Cpl. W. H. Metcalf may be widely separated in rank, but they've got one big thing in common. Both are holders of the Empire's highest award for valor—the Victoria Cross. The two are veterans of the old 16th Battalion, Canadian Scottish Regiment, of the First World War. They are here for the week-end memorial ceremonies at the armory and Pioneer Square to honor the fallen of the regiment in two world wars. Col. Peck lives at Sidney. Cpl. Metcalf came all the way from Portland, Me., for the big reunion of the regiment. Major ceremony will be dedication of a new memorial cross at Pioneer Square Sunday afternoon at 3, standard time. ## Hint Settlement Near In Shipyard Walkout

Both Sides Reticent At Critical Point As Conferences Called For Sunday

By DAVE STOCK

There was a strong hint today that new and important developments may occur Monday in Victoria's shipyard strike—developments which could lead to early settlement.

Indications of "something in the wind" were gleaned from various sources; and while spokesmen for both sides directly concerned maintained there was no immediate change in the general picture, they made no attempt to conceal their optimism.

Their reluctance to explain this attitude was interpreted as significant. Since the situation is both delicate and complicated, those directing the affairs of the disputing sides naturally would avoid throwing a wrench into whatever machinery they hope to use to settle the issue.

SETTLEMENT PLAN

At the same time, the Joint Shipyard Council, a representative body embracing eleven different unions with members employed in the local shipyards, made known that it, too, had plans for settling the strike.

Fred Bevis, council president, said the executive was endeavoring to arrange a meeting Sunday morning with officers of the striking boilermakers' union in order to put forward its proposals.

He said these same proposals would be revealed to non-striking shipyard workers at a mass meeting Sunday afternoon.

FOR NON-STRIKERS

The mass meeting, called under sponsorship, will be held at 2.30 p.m. at Woodworth Hall, 857 Pandora Avenue. Purpose of the

Here Year, Says City Pace Fast

Victoria is not the slow and easy-paced town the rest of Canada likes to make out.

You can take it from Cecil Wyatt, who Monday completes his first year in the position of city manager.

He hasn't been idle. Of changes and innovations over the past year, however, he stresses they have been made in "close co-operation and in many instances at the suggestion of department heads."

"It is not a one-man show," declared Mr. Wyatt.

When the grey-haired man of the quiet manner and cautious statement arrived from Kingston, Ont., to take up the newly-created post of city manager, he ran slap into union negotiations. Before he was through, he had helped present the city's case at countless meetings with seven different unions and groups.

In the meantime, City Council asked for various studies and reports, ranging from traffic to aldermanic reduction. Mr. Wyatt has now really reached the civic hall of fame, however, with his appointment as liaison officer between the city and Memorial Arena commission.

Of the town itself he says: "Tempo as a whole is much greater than those in other parts of Canada realize."

FINGER ON PULSE

Every municipality has a pulse and Mr. Wyatt feels that in this past year he has gotten his finger on Victoria's.

Here are some of the matters which have been dealt with from his office:

1. Installation of central accounting system.
2. Establishment of personnel department.
3. Traffic study.
4. Town planning liaison work.
5. Reduction of standing committees of council.
6. Revision of committee procedure.
7. Attendance of press at committee meetings.
8. New type annual report presentation.
9. Extension of assessment year.
10. Aldermanic reduction report.

Crash Victim Fights Death

Woman Gravely Hurt, 2 Companions Escape Lightly In Morning Mishap

A 60-year-old Victoria woman is near death following a spectacular car crash shortly before 1 this morning on Gorge Road.

She is Mrs. Gladys Frew, 520 Walter Street. Mrs. Frew is suffering from internal injuries, head injuries and a broken leg.

Saanich police said she and her husband, Jack, aged 60, were passengers in a 1950 model car driven by Sydney Pegg, 46 Sims Avenue, which crashed a telephone pole near 41 Gorge Road West.

Left front of the car was almost completely demolished and is considered a total loss.

Mr. Frew is reported in good condition at Jubilee. Pegg was treated for minor hurts and released.

City police and the R.C.M.P. assisted Saanich police at the accident scene. Report was the car went 245 feet off the wrong side of the road to wind up crashing into the pole carrying high-tension wires.

Police had a difficult time extricating the injured from the wreckage.

Poor Weather For Picnics, Says Forecast

Week-end picnics are not advised by Victoria's weather forecast.

What appears to be a spell of wintry weather is in store, with the prediction reading "cloudy today and Sunday, intermittent rain, becoming continuous Saturday afternoon, showers tonight and a few showers Sunday."

Low tonight will be 48, with Sunday's high at 60. Winds will increase to southwest at 20 miles Saturday, shifting to southwest tonight.

Foretell Late October Wedding

Lt. Col. and Mrs. A. W. Hunt, 637 Beach Drive, announce the engagement this week-end of their youngest daughter, Barbara Carlyle, to Thomas Douglas Crowe Galt, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Galt, Vancouver. The wedding will take place on Oct. 27 in the Church of St. George the Martyr, Cadboro Bay, with Rev. William Hills officiating. Miss Hunt has chosen Miss Shirley Wallace, and her sister, Mrs. Osborne Scott Jr., as her attendants.

Washoe County Senator Here With Wife

Mr. and Mrs. Forest B. Lovelock, Reno, Nev., are enjoying a few days on the island as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. Dawson, "Cliffe Gables," Douglas Street, before going on to Seattle where Mr. Lovelock will attend the National Automobile Dealers' Association regional meeting on Monday. Mr. Lovelock is senator of Washoe County in the Nevada Legislature. Mrs. Lovelock is a past state president of the American Association of University Women, and is active in other local organizations.

Scottish Families United By Recent Autumn Wedding

Culmination of a friendship which commenced during the Second World War when their fathers were together in the Canadian Scottish, was the marriage recently of Alexandra Norma MacLennan, youngest daughter of Maj. and Mrs. Alex MacLennan, Edmonton, Alta., and Capt. A. L. Duff Macdonell, only son of Capt. and Mrs. Leslie Macdonell, Vancouver Street.

Rev. J. L. W. McLean performed the ceremony in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, attended only by immediate members of the family. Service uniforms were worn by the groom and his father.

Capt. Macdonell claimed his bride with a wide gold band wedding ring belonging to his grandmother, the late Mrs. Margaret MacLennan.

The fair-haired bride was gown in a cinnamon-toned gown of tulle and lace. The skirt fell in graceful folds to ballerina length and was complemented by cocoa-beige satin ballet shoes. The bride carried a bouquet of golden rapture roses and bronze feathered chrysanthemums.

Mrs. J. K. Ralfe, Vancouver, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She chose a gown of turquoise lace over taffeta and carried a colonial bouquet of yellow carnations and bronze chrysanthemums.

Lieut. Roy Ralfe, Victoria, attended the groom.

The bridal party stood on a carpet of bright-colored oak and maple leaves at a reception in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Harrison, Beach Drive, old friends of the groom's family. French marigolds and goldenrod created an attractive background arrangement. The newlyweds were piped into the reception by Pipe-Maj. Ian Duncan, who also played the pipes for Scottish dances and an eightsome reel danced by the groom, his parents and several friends.

Col. Cy Peck, V.C., proposed the toast to the bride.

The three-tier wedding cake was cut with a Highland dirk, tied with ribbons in the tartans of the two clans.

Bride and groom were piped aboard the midnight boat and from Vancouver will motor through the Rockies to Camp Shilo, Man., where they will make their home.

For her going-away ensemble the bride chose a two-piece boucle suit, claret colored, with grey topcoat complimented by wine and grey accessories and a gardenia corsage.

Mr. and Mrs. Forest B. Lovelock, Reno, Nev., are enjoying a few days on the island as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Clarence Wallace have graciously consented to act as patrons of the Victoria Symphony Society and will attend opening concert of the orchestra on Wednesday in the Royal Theatre. Mayor Percy George and Mrs. George will also attend as patrons.

Following the performance members of the women's committee of the symphony society have issued invitations for a reception at the Moss Street home of Miss Sara Spencer.

Informal Tea Hour Party

A lovely arrangement of Michaelmas daisies and cosmos in amethyst rose tones, centred the tea table in the lunch room at Victoria High School yesterday afternoon when members of the teaching staff entertained honor guests and awards winners at tea, following prize-giving ceremonies in the auditorium.

Miss Mary Hamilton and Mrs. Hazel Hodson presided at the tea table. Mr. Harry Smith and Miss Lola Maxwell received the guests while other members of the staff served refreshments.

Bride-Elect Feted

Red, white and blue was the motif when an October 1 Navy bride-elect, Miss Betty Bridge, was feted at a miscellaneous shower at the home of Miss Lily Henderson, Quadra Street, Thursday evening.

Gifts were concealed in a wishing well and the refreshment table was centred with an arrangement of white chrysanthemums, red carnations and blue cornflowers, and decorated with flags.

Guests were Mrs. J. Bridge, mother of the bride-elect, Misses Irene Nelson, Doreen Thorne, Sadie MacArthur, Georgie Richardson, Jessie Nichol, Lal O'Neill, Joan Bailey, Elaine Farmer, Nancy Martin, Joan Semple, Mary Stroud, Mary Barrick, Ida Crews, Violet Newman, Tillie McAvooy, Alice Moolin, and Ruth Hall.

The King-Evans Wedding

Dean Cecil Swanson officiated at the marriage last week-end of Mrs. Walter F. Evans and Hon. James H. King, P.C., M.D., C.M., LL.D., F.A.C.S., Speaker of the Senate of Canada from 1945-49. Family members of the principals were present at the 4.30 o'clock ceremony in the Chapel of Christ Church Cathedral and later at the informal reception held at the home of the bride in Beach and Town House.

Senator and Mrs. King entrained later for eastern Canada. Before visiting in Montreal and later going to Ottawa for the parliamentary session, they will proceed directly to Quebec where the Hon. Dr. King will make personal acknowledgement to the College of Physicians and Surgeons for an honor bestowed on him seven years ago. At that time, the college made Senator King an honorary member, but due to illness he was unable to be present in person to accept the degree, which was conferred en absentia.

At the afternoon's wedding, which is of exceptionally far-reaching interest, the bride was escorted by her son, Dr. Lacey Evans, and attended by her daughter, Mrs. J. Alex Swanson. Dr. F. E. King was his brother's groomsmen.

For the occasion, the bride wore a distinctive afternoon gown of midnight blue chiffon velvet. Her hat was in two tones of orchid, the same shades repeated in the orchids she wore en corsage.

For 'Victorian Cabaret'

Sponsored by the Junior Auxiliary to Royal Jubilee Hospital, "Victorian Cabaret" is becoming one of the outstanding social events of the autumn season.

Many have already made up parties and plan to attend the affair on Friday evening at Club Sirocco.

Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Birley will attend with Dr. and Mrs. E. McElmoyle, and Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Lewis. Going together are Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Poyntz, Mr. and Mrs. A. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Colpman, Mr. and Mrs. J. Dargfield, Mr. and Mrs. A. Briggs and Mr. and Mrs. H. Doherty.

Also in a party will be Dr. and Mrs. H. M. Edmison, Dr. and Mrs. Rose McNeill, Dr. and Mrs. C. H. Moore, Dr. and Mrs. A. Trotter, Dr. and Mrs. J. N. Edmison, Dr. and Mrs. Colin Ibbson and Mr. and Mrs. George Masters.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Abernethy have made plans to attend with Dr. and Mrs. R. Garner, Lt.-Cmdr. and Mrs. Ian Butters, Mrs. Eileen Cordray and Mr. Derek Boyce. Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Stephen are going with Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Ritchie, Mr. and Mrs. A. Baker and Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Williams.

Attending with Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Mearns will be Mr. and Mrs. Logan Mayhew, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Whitlesey, Mr. and Mrs. Thorik Juelsberg and Mr. and Mrs. J. Todd.

In another party will be Mr. and Mrs. W. Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Barclay, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Lewis and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Patterson.

Flowers, Fruits Ready At Government House For Visit Of Royal Princess

By ELIZABETH FORBES

There's a man in Victoria who is scanning the skies these days with just as much interest as the chap who officially charts the weather up on Gonzales Hill. And that's Beresford Davies, head gardener at Government House. He only took over the work in August, when William Darling retired after many years service.

And with only a few weeks to prepare he's been thrust smack into the middle of what may easily be the most important moments in his life.

Already he knows the choicest blooms, the most luscious and the tastiest vegetables in the gardens.

And he's put imaginary tags on a good few of his prizes to save them for the Royal visit.

"At least, I'm trying to save them," he tells you, "but it all depends on the weather."

First it was the extreme heat that worried him. And now it is the heavy rains.

"If it keeps up we'll have very few flowers left in the perennial borders," he foretells.

"When we need a cool weather. Cool with just a little warm sunshine. Then we could save the flowers and make a good showing."

IN AUTUMN COLORS

Gardener Davies sighs and adds "wish their Royal Highnesses had come in September. The gardens have been lovely this month!"

And looking around the Government House gardens, even after the first rains, it is easy to see why Mr. Davies says that.

Perennial beds are heavy with bloom. Bright geraniums, and dahlias in all shades, are spilling a last glory in the borders. Midsun daisies and golden rod are a solid mass of color in the background.

"Geraniums will be gone," gardener Davies says, "dahlias too. May have a few Michaelmas daisies left and some chrysanthemums."

Then he pointed to row on row of small bedding-out plants under the apple trees.

"That's what should go in the beds now. Wallflowers and forget-me-nots for next spring. But may have to hold 'em back until after the Royal visit."

When the time comes Mr. Davies will be well prepared with floral decorations for various rooms in Government House.

Already, in one of the greenhouses he has rows of potted chrysanthemums, yellow, soft pink, bronze and white, coming into full bud. They will be taken in, pots and all.

In another greenhouse there are 500 smaller chrysanthemum plants coming on and 300 carnations in red, white, pink and crimson, for cutting.

Bazaar On Tuesday

Annual bazaar of Order of the Amaranth will be held in the Douglas Room, Hudson's Bay Co. on Tuesday. Mrs. Vera Filwood, past royal matron, will open the affair at 2.15. There will be stalls of fancywork, home cooking and candy. Tea will be served. General convener is Mrs. Florence Hourston.

Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip will see the lily pools at Government House attractive even in the late autumn. (B.C. Government Travel Bureau picture.)

Begonias, too, are being prepared in pots. And the ever-popular coleus is ready for background color.

Mr. Davies also has a few pots of delicately frilled petunias which he has just cut back.

"They should bloom in time for the visit," he tells you, as he runs an exploratory thumb gently over the stems.

ORCHIDS, TOO

"And we'll have orchids," he says proudly, as he leads you into a greenhouse where there are four large pots of slipper orchids, in green and bronze and white.

"We may lose a bloom or two in the next few weeks but we'll save some for the Princess," he predicts.

Still outdoors, in pots, are 400 chrysanthemums.

"We don't bring them in until they show color," the head gardener says.

And in rows, under a tar-paper roof devised by Mr. Davies to keep dew, rain or sunshine away from the blooms, are hundreds more chrysanthemums, rooted in the ground. Some of these plants are in full bloom now, but others are just starting to bud.

These will also be used for cut flowers during the visit.

"We'll have lots of our own fruit," Mr. Davies says with assurance, as he looks around at his heavily laden apple and pear trees.

"And vegetables!" There are rows of lettuce, carrots, beets, cabbage, white turnips and the like.

AND LUSCIOUS GRAPES

"There should be grapes, too," he adds proudly.

Stretching across the walls and roof of one greenhouse are four different kinds of grapes, black and white. Three of these rods—or vines as we call them—are being carefully watched. They are the Muscat of Alexandria variety, a white grape.

Right now they are hanging in luscious bunches, soft green and pale gold. A misty blush coats each grape.

"That's the secret of keeping 'em," says the head gardener. "If that bloom brushes off—they won't last."

He sighs again as he looks around at the beauty of Government House grounds, etched sharply, even in the subdued light of a rainy day.

"Wish I had one of those crystal balls fortune tellers use," he says. "I sure would like to find out about the weather."

SHOPPING GUIDE

Penny-Saver A Time-Saver
'Cause Time Saves Money

By PENNY SAVER

"Really, Penny," my friend said to me this morning, "I am dreading the thoughts of this week-end."

My friend owns a clock shop and at first I did not see why this week-end in particular would be worse than any other.

"What's wrong with this week-end?" I asked him.

He repeated, "It will be terrible."

"Come now! What could be as bad as all that?" I asked.

"Changing back from Daylight Saving Time," he replied.

"Oh!" I said.

Then he told me the story.

It seems that every year when we change back from daylight saving a great many people grab hold of their clocks and swing them back an hour.

That, I discovered, should not be done with a striking or chiming clock.

"It upsets the whole workings," explained my friend.

At least 90 per cent of the clocks in this type work from a pendulum and to set them back sends the whole thing berserk.

"On Monday," he said, "I will be flooded with calls telling me that for some reason or other a clock is not chiming right or has stopped all together. In some cases the party concerned will confront me with a clock I repaired for them recently and say that after I fixed it, it hasn't worked so well."

I was beginning to see the troubles ahead for my friend.

"Mind you, Penny, I am only too glad to help them when they make this mistake, but it all comes at once and generally on such a large scale," he mourned.

Then he told me how the clock could be reset without ill effects.

In the case of a mantel model all you have to do is prop one side up with books, or the like, and the unevenness will make it stop. After an hour set it on an even keel again.

In clocks where you can reach the pendulum, merely stop it swinging and give it a push in an hour. It's as simple as that!

After talking with my friend I looked around his shop and found several magnificent timepieces.

Alarm clocks are priced from $2 up and a beautiful Banjo clock is selling at $35.

A rare Vienna Regulator takes its place among other fine clocks, priced at $75.

It would not be complete unless I mentioned a grandfather clock. He was there, too, with several other relatives.

The least expensive one was $175 and the rest went up from there.

Red Cross Corps Looking For Volunteers

At the outset of the Second World War the Canadian Red Cross Society created the Red Cross Corps, designed as a body of women, trained and disciplined to carry out general duties within the Red Cross organization and available for other national and community services wherever they were needed.

Actually, from the beginning of hostilities until long after the last gun was fired, women volunteers in the Red Cross Corps of Greater Victoria and district worked long hours meeting troopships, receiving prisoners of war, escorting war brides to their new homes, running a mobile canteen, attending lectures and training courses and doing all the extra jobs necessary in a community in wartime.

Since then, the pace has been quieter—the world has drifted into not-so-immediate waters.

Nevertheless the Red Cross Corps has carried on... with depleted numbers and numerous duties which involved the blood transfusion service, the Red Cross lodge, acting as staff drivers, checking and delivering loan cupboard equipment.

Now the world is assuming another sort of preparedness—the safety of its civilian populations in any emergency—and Victoria like other cities is doing its best to anticipate and prepare for any emergent condition.

Red Cross has a place in civil defense, and so Red Cross Corps, already committed to play an active part, is stepping up the pace again and asks for volunteers.

Its ranks are open to all women of 18 years or over. Women who are interested in a form of service, which challenges both mental agility and bodily energy, can perform a definite function in the life of Victoria's community.

Applications for enlistment may be made at Red Cross headquarters, Fort Street, where classes will be held every Monday evening. Further information may be had from Miss W. Dawson Thomas, G 8402.

Buyers Stall As Third Quarter Profits Awaited

By HARRY YOUNG, Times Business Editor

The Canadian stock market, after soaring to new highs earlier this month, in the past two weeks has tended to taper off, and last night industrials and other sections, except gold, finished lower on the week.

Young

A distinct cooling-off among buyers has been noted, and this sent prices lower without any accompanying change in the rate of selling. The change from the enthusiasm of late August and early September is probably due to the imminence of company reports for the third quarter of the year. These may be expected early next month.

Some dropping off in earnings among the consumer goods manufacturers is to be anticipated following the buyer resistance which in many parts of the country made the summer a nightmare period for retailers.

But there is no reason to expect that all profits will be lower. Indeed New York is anticipating that the third quarter reports will be a great deal more favorable than seemed likely last spring, when new controls and other Washington imposed difficulties were a source of worry.

As the company figures filter in, and the results do not appear too drastic, there will no doubt be a resurgence of buying on the assumption that trade will have its normal pick-up for the last quarter of the year.

Activity on New York stock market on Monday may be restricted owing to the fact that it is the Jewish New Year and many members will be on holiday.

The International Monetary Fund's decision Friday not to hold its members to an embargo on the price of gold fabricated for industrial and ornamental purposes came after the closure of the eastern markets.

The effect of the concession will not be known until markets resume on Monday, and the Canadian government has given an indication whether it will agree to Canadian mines selling in this new free market.

It seems hardly likely that Ottawa will refuse, even if it decides to exercise some control on the free sales. Any other course would be to antagonize Canadian gold producers who have been snorting indignation ever since South Africa started tapping the free market while the rest of the producers were tied to the U.S. $35 ceiling.

On the other hand if the Canadian decision was accompanied by a cessation of the gold supply, there would be a new outpour from those operating on low grade deposits.

However, even if this does not happen, and Canadian producers get the right to trade in the open market, not all the problems of the depressed industry will be solved. There is only a limited market for fabricated gold, and once everyone is clamoring for a share, the selling pressure will become so hot that the price of gold may automatically topple to something not far above the U.S. ceiling.

Summer will be well and truly over so far as stock markets are concerned with the Thanksgiving holiday week-end. For a last fling Canadian markets will remain closed next Saturday and Monday, but the following Saturday, Oct. 13, they will be opened for the short morning session.

The 5 1/2-day week will continue until next summer.

NEW CHAIRMAN of the Victoria and Vancouver Island branch of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association is J. Neil Regan, vice president of the Phoenix Brewing Co. Ltd. Mr. Regan takes over in mid-term from W. A. Stenner, who has resigned following the closing down of his company, the Pacific Furniture Co.

Your Money" may be judged from the fact that one intending applicant has postponed his annual holiday until after the course is completed on Nov. 7.

The course is of five lectures given by prominent members of the local branch of the Investment Dealers' Association. A similar course, held last winter, was so popular that many applications had to be turned down for lack of accommodation in the lecture room.

The course does not aim to tell people how to make their fortunes in a hurry, but to show the investor the pitfalls he should avoid, and the best methods in husbanding his resources.

The lecturers taking part are R. F. Hassen, Pemberton Securities; A. L. Pidgeon, Wood, Gundy and Co.; J. D. Hagar, Hagar Investments; Cliff Holloway, A. E. Ames and Co., and H. F. Bailey, Gillespie.

Top executives of the Advertising Association of the West which has a membership of over 6,000 advertising people in 32 clubs from British Columbia to Mexico will visit Victoria next week in the persons of J. Neil Regan, president, and Chas. W. Collier, executive vice-president.

Mr. Regan will be guest speaker next Friday evening before the Advertising and Sales Club of Victoria.

Victoria was the original birthplace of the extensive A.A.W. organization, the ground work having been planned at a conference in this city in 1903.

Mr. Regan will speak on what's ahead in advertising and sales. He is a past president of Hollywood Adv. Club.

Mr. Collier, now devoting full time to the A.A.W. organization is a specialist on public relations, advertising, sales and marketing subjects.

In town yesterday for Investment Dealers' golf tournament at Victoria Golf club were Reed L. Naylor and Warring Clark of W. C. Pittfield and Co. of Vancouver.

Privateer Makes New Proposition

Shareholders of the Privateer Mine Ltd., who adjourned the annual meeting of last Aug. 14 after a stormy discussion, will meet again in Vancouver Oct. 10 to hear a proposal by the directors that a new company to be known as Privateer Base Metals Ltd. should be formed to work the Star group of claims in the Alsworth division held on option by Privateer Mine Ltd.

The directors proposed that shareholders of Privateer Mine company and that they should be given an option to purchase the existing Privateer mill.

An action by Camac Mining Co. against the company in connection with Tofino claims is being defended.

IN THE EVENING THE TIMES

on Trans-Canada with music by an instrumental group conducted by Russ Gorow, and songs by Wally Koster and the "Dairy Maids Trio." Thursday night's "Arthur Godfrey's Talent Scouts" make it possible for talented young Americans to get a toe-hold on the success ladder.

Friday, the swinging doors part on "Duffy's Tavern" and "Canadian Short Stories" become a weekly feature. The kids will watch the radio for "Roy Rogers." "Ford" Theatre reopens, and "Now I Ask You" digs up some posers for the question panel consisting of Morley Callaghan, J. C. McNaught, Ralph Allen and a weekly guest.

Saturday night will have much the same fare, but there's "N.H.L. Hockey" coming up in about a month's time and some other regular shows will change time.

Officially opening the 1951 Community Chest Red Feather campaign, a power-packed program, "Give Your Best," will be broadcast tomorrow night from Hollywood over the combined facilities of the Dominion and the four major U.S. networks, commencing at 7:30 p.m. PST. (Some stations may be carrying this show one hour later.) The program will include messages from Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent and President Truman and will feature the following personalities: Loretta Young, Jane Wyman, Gregory Peck, Tyrone Power, Jimmy Durante, Mario Lanza, Bing Crosby, Judy Garland, Dinah Shore, Tony Martin and Richard Widmark.

Tonight Owen McLeod, a young local veteran from Langford, will speak on behalf of the Community Chest over CJVI at 8:30. McLeod, who may be forced to give up his job shortly, is only 31 and in grave danger of becoming completely paralyzed from the ravages of multiple sclerosis.

OVER THE WEEK-END... You can get a word picture on how the Cougars are shaping up for the coming hockey season, tonight at 8:30 on CKDA when Bill Stephenson brings you a play-by-play description of their exhibition game with the Saskatchewan Quakers. At 6, there's "Hopping Along Cassidy," at 8:30, "Gene Autry," and at 9, "Gangbusters," all on KIRO.

SUNDAY... "Invitation to Music" at 12 noon on CBR. From 2 to 3:30, "Fiddle Joe's Yarns," "Jake the Kid," and "S.S. Marigold" in that order on CBR. "Big Show" at 3:30 on KOMO. "Jack Benny" at 4 on KIRO. "Amos 'n' Andy" at 4:30 on KIRO. "The Phil Harris-Alice Faye Show" at 5 on CJVI. "Theatre Guild" at 5:30 on KOMO. "Jubilee Show" at 6:30 on KOMO. "Standard Hour" at 8:30 on KOMO. "In Those Days" at 10:15 on CBR.

PRAIRIE ROUNDUP

C.O. Will Meet Groups In Korea

CALGARY (CP)—When the troop ship carrying the first two rifle companies of 1st Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, arrives in Korea the commanding officer of the regiment will be on hand to greet them.

The troops, the first to be sent to Korea under the army's new rotation scheme that will bring the 2nd Battalion home by Christmas, left Seattle recently. Lt-Col. Norman G. Wilson-Smith, M.B.E., their commanding officer, will fly to the Far East, leaving Calgary on a T.C.A. flight to Vancouver Monday.

"I am very pleased that we are on our way," Lt-Col. Wilson-Smith said. He pointed out the men would be glad of the opportunity to get some battle experience.

Lt-Col. Wilson-Smith, 34, took over command of the famous Patricia's Sept. 14, 1950, from Lt-Col. D. C. Cameron who was appointed to a post at Camp Borden, Ont.

A qualified paratrooper, Lt-Col. Wilson-Smith is a native of St. Catharines, Ont., and studied at the Kelvin Technical School in Winnipeg and the University of Manitoba.

During the Second World War he served overseas with the Royal Winnipeg Rifles, commanding a company until he was wounded during the fighting in Normandy in 1944. After the war he was appointed to the directing staff of the Canadian Army staff college at Kingston, Ont.

In January, 1949, he was posted to a senior staff appointment in the directorate of army personnel.

Bargaining Agent

CALGARY (CP)—Notice from the Board of Industrial Relations that the General Workers' Union, Local 258, C.C.L., had been certified as bargaining agent for the employees at the United Trailer Co. was received Friday, T. A. McCloy, regional director of the C.C.L., announced.

Mr. McCloy said an application to start negotiations for a collective agreement had already been made. Such negotiations for wages and working conditions are expected to start soon.
